Enthusiastic loyalty for Hartford High, good fortune in athletics, success in achieving academic goals. This is happiness.

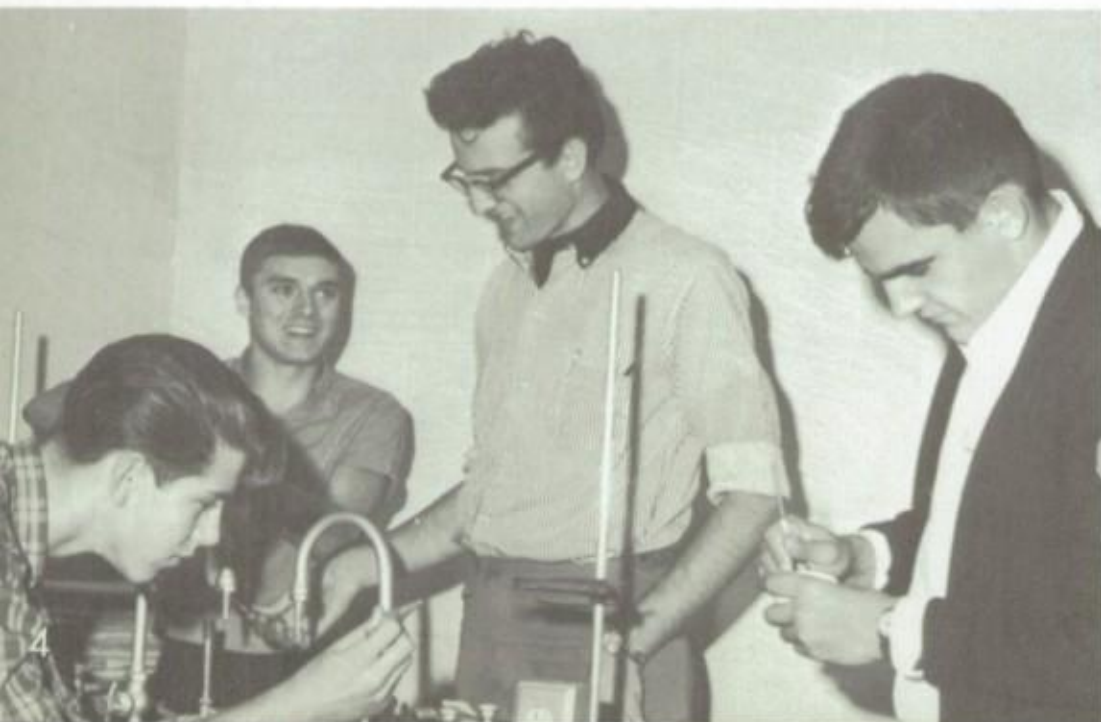

The Junior boys found a new way to eat their wheaties. It not only tasted good but improved their game.

"We sure had a hard day but finally had a chance to rest. Luckily we were at our best when the photographer found us.

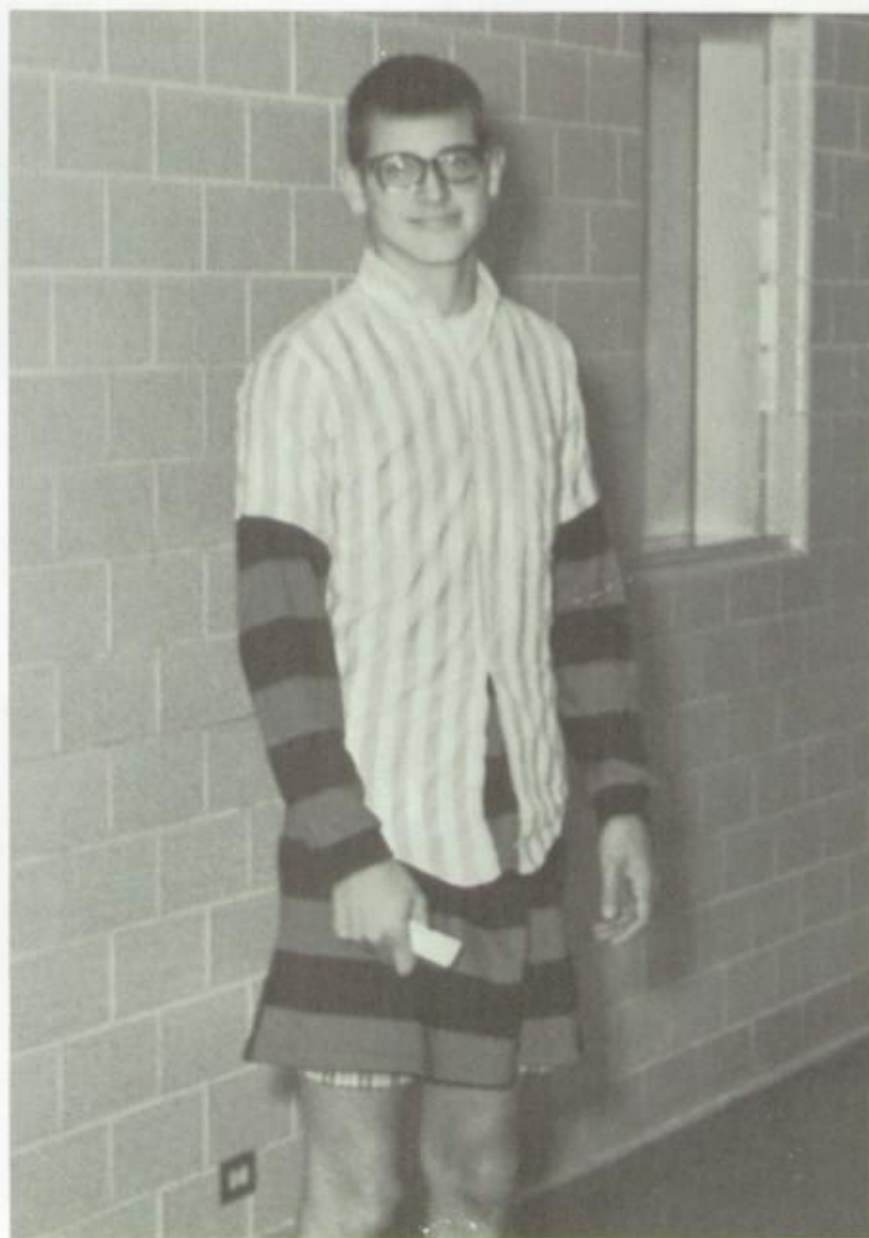

Mr. Klockow once again attempted to produce the chemists of tomorrow. Oh well, there's always next year.

Students Are Happy

As students entered H.H.S. this year, they brought with them the hope of obtaining the knowledge of what "Happiness Is." Hard working, happy students can produce a very successful year.

Burmuda and clash day proved to be somewhat interesting. Donn Reinelt wondered if anyone had noticed his new outfit.

Mr. Bell and Miss Lepien were always busy in the office until the bell rang. The mornings were filled with confusion.

As They Return with New Goals for 1965-66

As they sang O Hartford High, our faithful friend . . ., words so familiar to all of them, they had an inner feeling of deep loyalty to their school.

Coaches Mike Droese, Pat Dillon, and Pat Hart anxiously waited to see how "their girls" did in the Powderpuff football game.

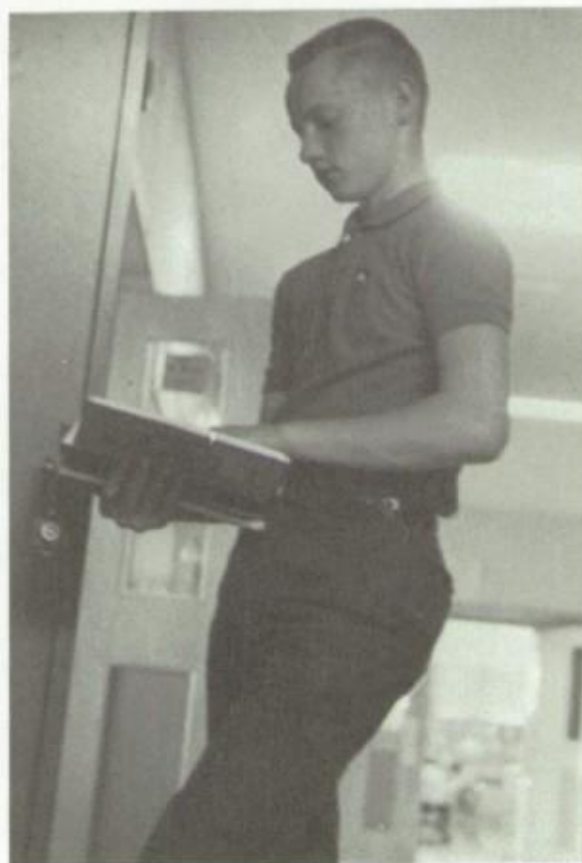

From the lack of expression on his face, Peter Quandt seemed to be wondering just what language he was listening to.

Juniors demonstrated their well-learned principles of democratic procedures by voting for their favorite candidate.

The cooks couldn't quite get the "delicious" food on the plates fast enough as the students hurriedly filed by.

Students of

It was a very rare moment when the halls of Union were empty except for one lone student, busy at his locker.

These chemistry students knew well their rules for passing—act nonchalant when you are about to take a test.

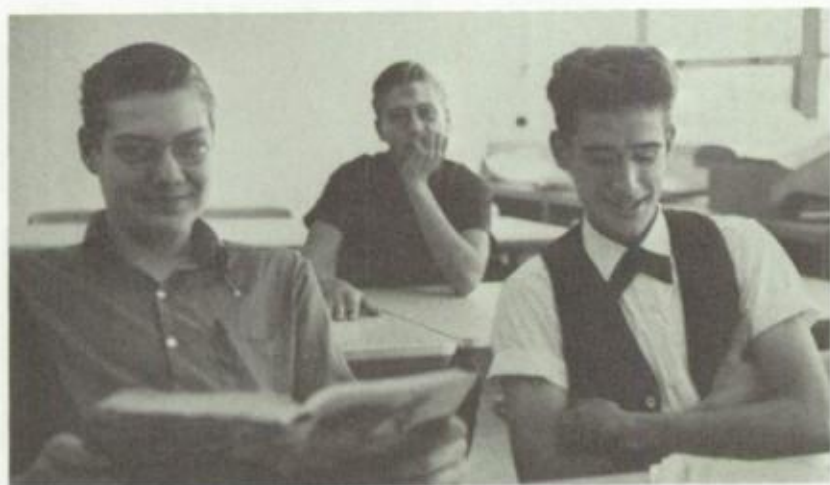

Apparently this was the way an average boy "spent" his leisure time. The winner of all of the money, Herbert Lofy, had his hands ready to grab it.

These boys found that auto mechanics combined an interesting subject with invaluable knowledge to be used in the future.

HHS Feel Sure They Know What Happiness Is

Ron Kuehl, Tom Guntly, and Dennis Schiller hoped that they could see their subjects better through glasses.

Pat Murphy's painting was hardly started, but it was already beginning to show signs of great promise.

Bob Browne and John Marsh typified Hartford's student body on Bermuda Day with sweatshirts and shakers.

Academic

Happiness is the realization that students are grasping the ideas presented to them and effectively applying this knowledge to the problems they encounter.

Being principal of a fast growing high school is a very busy job and Mr. Boll is a very capable administrator.

Mr. Boll addressed the teachers at a faculty meeting early this year.

Staying in the Background, They Admin-

Behind every successful student body is an efficient administrative staff. This was proven a true statement more than once during the past year. Even though the students planned their own assemblies, dances, and many other activities, there was always at least one administrator at the scene willing to give a helping hand.

The guidance counselors hardly had a free moment. Some eager student was always ready to start planning for his future. The Seniors especially kept them busy with college applications and tests.

"The educational explosion, the roaring pursuit of learning... has never been matched, either in quality or in number in U. S. History." So said Time magazine in a recent discussion about American education. Pressed by this ever-increasing need for better education Hartford High's administration was given the vital assignment of doing just that-bettering our education.

Giving freely of their time and patience, our principals, board of education, and guidance counselors administered to our varying needs as students and individuals.

Principal J. G. Cartwright did his office work with a smile.

With the building of the new addition to Union foremost in their minds, the Board of Education frequently met to discuss the architects' plans.

They Are Not Only Counselors, but Friends

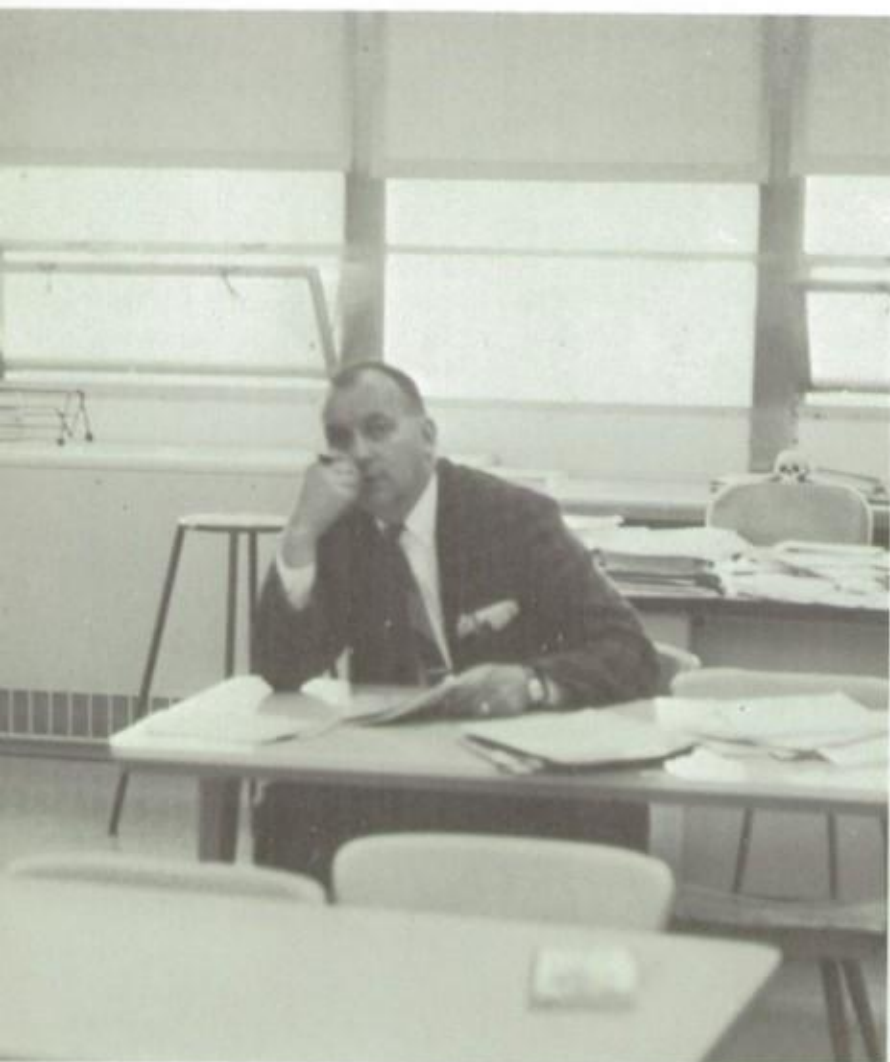

Mr. Fred Aliota, Central's Guidance Counselor, often found it necessary to refer to his psychological files in dealing with students' problems.

Mr. Erwin Benka found his first year as one of Union's guidance counselors to be very perplexing.

As guidance counselor at Union, Mr. James Bell frequently spoke with parents on their son's progress.

Every senior with plans of entering college next fall appreciated the help given them by Mr. Hammond, guidance counselor at Union.

Filing and Typing Were Essential Skills

Mrs. Benka is a willing secretary at Union. She can always be seen typing a letter for a member of the administration.

Mrs. Hammond, as the Central School secretary, ran the office and aided the administration.

Compiling the list of daily absentees was but one of the many jobs secretary Carolyn Lepien had.

Mrs. Vonder Hoek kept busy in the main office doing such secretarial jobs as typing letters.

Even the teachers and secretaries at Union such as Mrs. Vander Hoek, enjoyed the meals made by the cooks.

Janitors and Cooks - Attributes to H.H.S.

Our janitors hold the responsibility of making the school a clean, healthy place for learning and living. They may be found at school in the wee hours of the morning checking furnaces, lights, and halls to make sure everything is perfect so that a smooth day will elapse.

Each day the cooks face hungry students in the lunch line with calm assurance. Nutrition is the key word as they plan the week's meals.

But these behind the scene employees not only do their jobs, but, are willing to do extra things that help make our educational years the best there can be.

Baking was Mr. Hiller's profession and any one of the students could tell you he was an expert.

Mrs. Hauser, Mrs. Regan, and Mrs. Ziogran carefully blend their mixtures to perfection.

Mrs. Suits didn't need all of those super wonder products to get her wash clean.

Mr. Black, Mr. Thiede, Mr. Pfeiffer, Mr. Sherger, and Mr. Hoerth are the ones who kept our school clean.

Student Life

Happiness is knowing that our hard work resulted in a beautiful, exciting Homecoming and Prom.

"Will we or won't we finish the 1965 Prom by April 23?" This question was asked by the Junior class last year. After all how can you hide basketball rims, bleachers, and a ceiling full of lights? By gradually transforming the effervescent spirit of the gymnasium into the romantic atmosphere of a paradise, the Juniors were able to accomplish this task.

After walking through a bamboo curtain we found ourselves on an enchanted island for the remainder of the evening. Dancing under the stars to the intriguing music of Steve Swedish, we saw the brilliance of erupting volcanoes and listened to the rhythmic sounds of the rushing waterfall.

Due to all the hard work the Juniors put into the Prom, it was very difficult to remember the way the gymnasium had appeared one week before.

As the tide drifted back into the sea, each "Stranger in Paradise" placed the enchanted evening among his fondest memories.

The refreshments presented a good and delicious excuse for the prom-goers to withdraw from their dancing for a few moments.

Ecstasy Filled the Air As We Crossed the

The 1965 Prom Court added the finishing touches as they nervously awaited the crowning of the king and queen and the Grand March, which was to follow. They were filled with expectations of the evening ahead of them.

Surrounded by quaint straw huts and swaying palm trees, couples gathered to discuss the events of the evening in paradise.

Bridge Into Paradise

With the splendor of paradise before them, prom-goers entered the gym in anticipation of the evening ahead.

The gods of paradise looked on with favor as King Don proudly crowned Mary as his Queen.

Luc Nahoe waits impatiently with his date while checking her wrap before entering the splendor of the Prom.

For Seniors - The Final Step Before College

For Juniors - Novelty of Being Upperclassmen

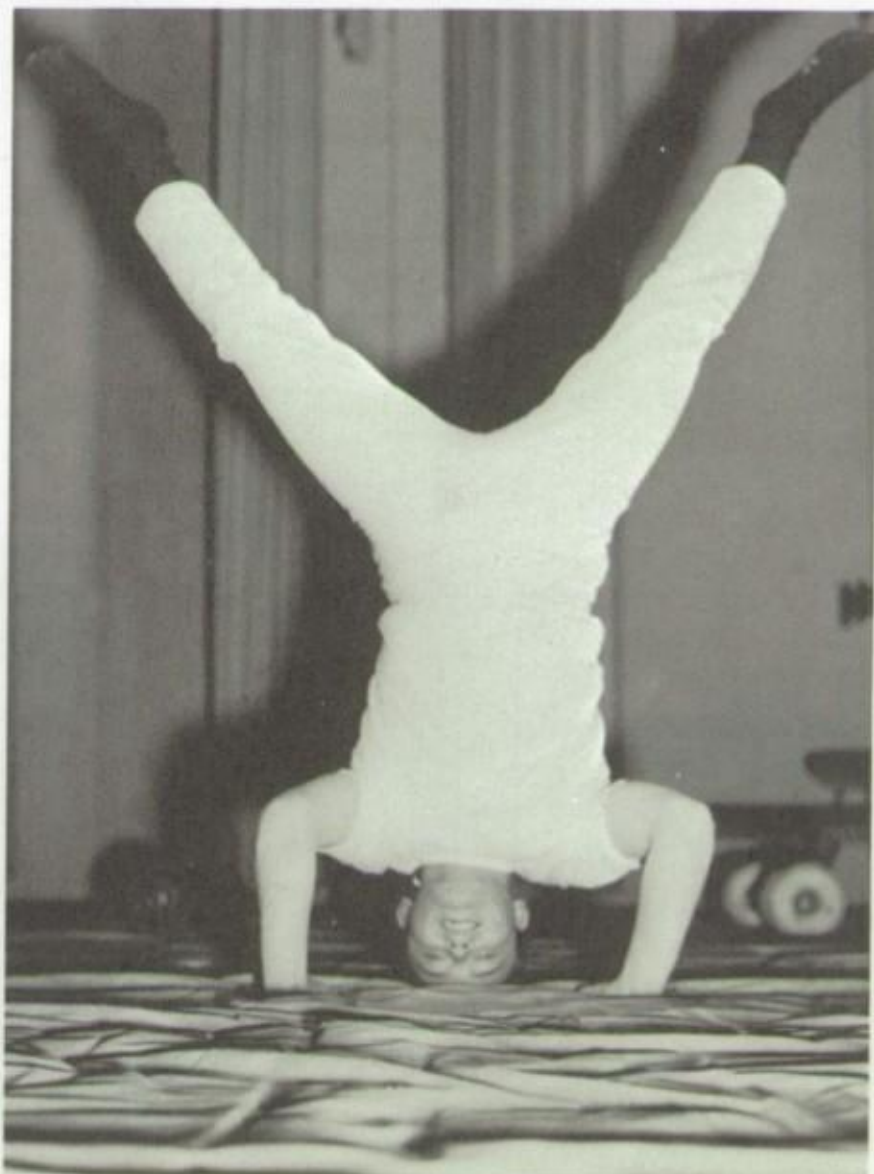

While a dance was in progress the Woolly Bully dropped in to show a few of the new dances.

Marla Asunto, and Glen Lehman gave us an example of some of the fun that took place at Senior Day dance, featuring Jack and the Rippers.

The "Wizard of Oz" Markland took his ups and downs the hard way. Semester tests he took the hardest.

Students gave all of their attention and loudest voices to the cheerleaders to show who were behind the team.

There's more to driving a car than turning on the ignition as sophomores found out; like checking peripheral vision in Driver's Ed. class.

For Sophomores - New Social and Academic Life

Jamie Hader got in the spirit of Christmas by helping decorate the tree given to the school by the Student Council.

Mr. Grandine showed his talent at doing the gorilla; but if you have never seen him polka . . . well, you can't see everything.

Fervent Renewal of School Spirit Made Our

Representing the highly optimistic feelings of the entire school, the junior float was awarded the Little Brown Jug.

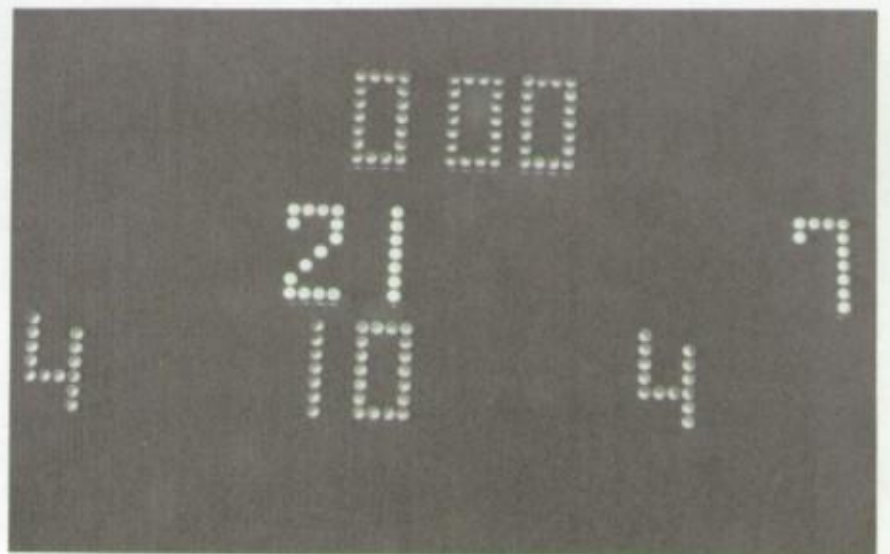

The Choral Department won an honorable mention for its float which depicted our team as the "New Improved Orioles."

Peggy Wenninger, Pat Stapleton, and Rita Luedke gathered on a downtown sidewalk to discuss the homecoming parade.

This year's never-to-be-forgotten Homecoming week started off with a kick-off assembly and the crowning of the 1965 Homecoming King and Queen. Dress-up day and bermuda and clash day were part of the week's activities. Introduced this year with the hope of renewing school spirit were the bonfire and Powder-Puff football game. The parade gave returning alumni and citizens of Hartford as well as the students of Central and Union a chance to get into the spirit of things and let the football team know that we were behind them all the way.

"Moonshine Time" was the theme selected for the dance following the game. The Student Council came up with some very unique decorations for the gymnasium. Hillbillies could be seen sitting next to their stills, surveying the affair before them. The success of the bonfire, increased participation in the parade, and the large attendance at the dance made the 1965 Homecoming unforgettable.

What looked like secret code from a James Bond thriller, was actually the scoreboard showing the Orioles' victory over Columbus.

1965 Homecoming an Exciting One to Witness

Miss Dickoff, Miss Peterson, and Miss Lepien bowed with deep "reverence" as the Polish national anthem was sung.

What crowd wouldn't have school spirit with peppy cheerleaders like Mike Burns and Glenn Frank?

Queen Sheryl presented the Little Brown Jug to Bob Schulteis, the Junior class president.

The Powder Puff game turned out to be more of a success than expected. Mr. Fink, the referee, made sure that no illegal passes were made.

With the soft strains of autumn music in the background homecoming couples glided across the floor in the arms of that special person.

Queen Sheryl proudly accepted her roses from Carol Williams as the Homecoming evening got underway.

Sheryl and Alan had the first dance of the evening before the Court joined in.

coming Complete for All

At the magic hour of 10:30 all joined in the Grand March following the Court.

They stood back as the heat of the bonfire radiated school spirit on their faces.

HHS Students Have Proven That High School

The book fair with its fascinating books caught the attention of many students. The display was one of variety and abundance to facilitate everyone.

Industrious people get hungry as evidenced by the number of starving students who daily invade the cafeteria.

Students placed school floor plans in the main hall for their parents' convenience in finding the right rooms and the right teachers during open house.

Bowling with the champs....this year in the phy. ed. classes students learned the correct methods of bowling.

Life Is Not Always Work Without Good Times

A roaring bonfire blazed excitement and enthusiasm into a new and wonderful Homecoming. The happy faces of the crowd were the result.

Barb Riley checked out a book with student librarian Sherry Becker, and promised herself that, for once, she would return it on time.

Resting comfortably, John Kirley found it was a convenient time to model his legs for the amused Clyde Indermuehle and Steve Kraynick.

With books in their hands and grins on their faces, students sped out of school to make ready for a long, full night of studying.

Senior Honor Students Brought a Meaningful

SENIOR HONORS

Another year was ended. For the seniors it was the conclusion of their high school years and the beginning of a new phase of more responsibility and independence. But in the future the graduates of '66 will visit and revisit HHS; the skills, knowledge, and experience acquired during their high school years will aid them in many ways and their memories will be with them throughout their lives. Memories of the tantalizing aroma of fresh baked breads floating through the Central halls, the making of new friends, sliding down the bannisters at Central, term papers miseries, football and basketball victories, Homecoming, and the most wonderful memory of all, the Junior Prom, "Stranger in Paradise." The years ahead will produce new memories, but the future can never replace the old ones.

An anxious crowd waited for the annual Homecoming Parade with great expectations. Seniors wondered about their float.

Sharon Roethle, winner of the D. A. R. Award, received it with deserved pride.

Senior Day, a new activity, aroused interest and many happy memories of the past four years.

Climax to Their Four Years of High School

These were the 1965-66 Senior Honor Students in their usual state of condition. Believe it or not they were just as normal as anyone.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Debbie Weber, Treasurer; Sheryl Jaeckel, Secretary; Pat Roets, President; and George Roemer, Vice President, rejoiced at the thought of graduation.

Ted Hattori, Valedictorian, and Dee Dee Currier, Salutatorian, looked relieved.

Social Problems was more fun than work, but what can be expected when working with everyday life.

Ted Hattori, Mike Burns, John Buckley, Don Quandt and Pat Roets remembered only the good parts of Badger State.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS: Janice Bublitz, Sec.; Larry Burns, Vice Pres.; Suzie Gruenhagen, Treas.; and Bob Schulteis, President; had a big year ahead of them.

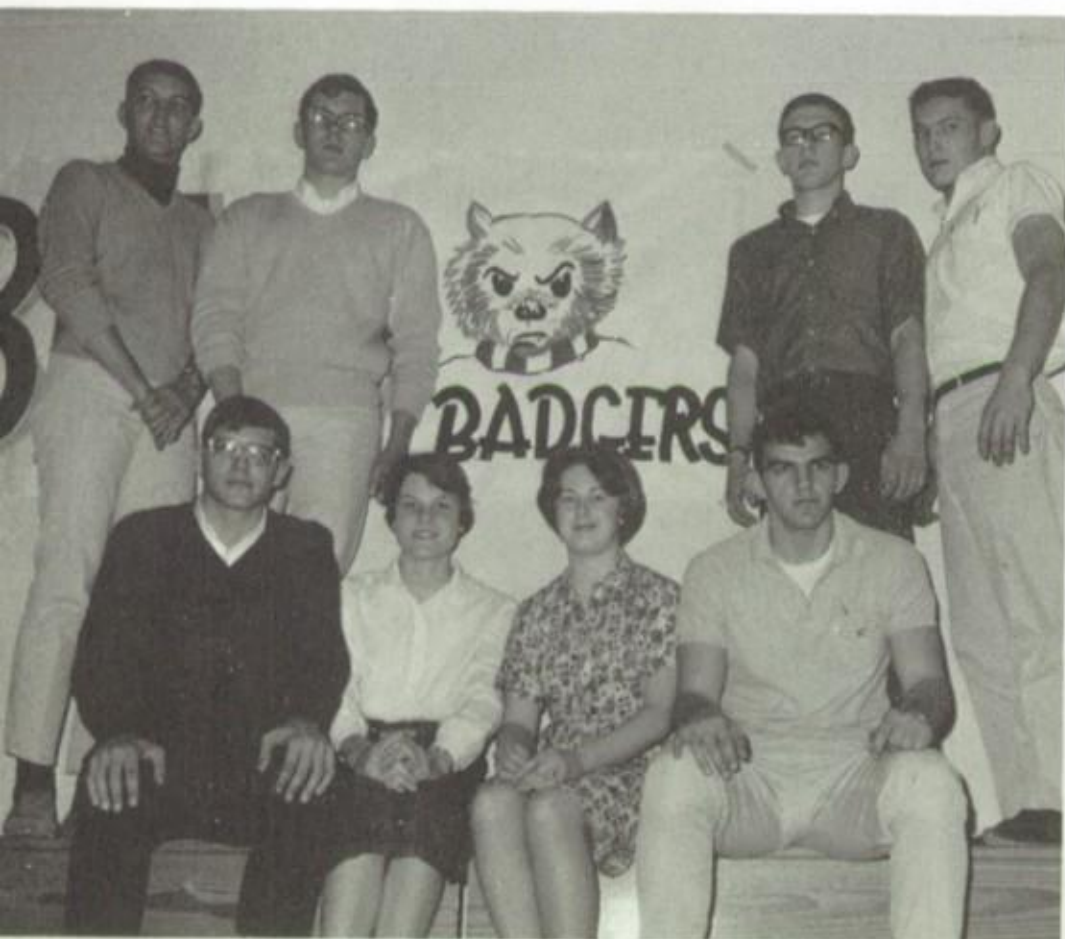

Hard Working Juniors Were the Recipients

JUNIORS

The past year was an important and rewarding one for the Juniors. The purchasing of the traditional class rings and the designating of the deserving students who were to receive the Key and Spade Award were only two of the thrilling events during the year. Finally, a happy ending came with the Prom, the most beautiful and enchanting dance of the year. Much planning and consideration went into all Junior activities which will always be remembered.

Voting for class officers, Prom Court, and Track Court, was expected of every Junior.

Badger State Boys and Girls had willful expressions of determination and expectation.

Homework and television were sacrificed to create the winning Homecoming float. First prize was the little Brown Jug.

English students presented plays, read poetry, studied great authors, and learned the basics of our language.

of the Key and Spade Awards

Mary Krentz and Vicki Emmer studied the process of crystalization for their next exam. Too bad they didn't understand it.

The Key and Spade of success were awarded to Annette Derge and Ann Thorn.

JUNIORS--Front Row: C. Carr, B. Becker, D. Borlen, M. Brinkmann. Second Row: C. Brown, D. Berghammer, B. Berling, J. Bast, S. Becker, J. Bublit, C. Berghammer. Third Row: W.

Juniors Readily Combined Study and Fun

Cheerleader Sherry Becker took great pleasure in crowning Lamburt Nueburg Mr. Ugly for the 1965 Homecoming.

Getting the right perspective seemed to be a problem for Kathy Ebert as she began her own drawing.

Plans for the Prom Danced in Their Heads

Cathie Heintz was ready to accept ideas from "the floor" as she sat prepared to jot them down.

These happy Juniors' attention was focused on something that tickled their funny bone. Maybe it was a test they were about to take.

JUNIORS—Front Row: J. Coffey, C. Doubleday, P. Dunn, G. Daubner. Second Row: S. Dietzler, V. Emmer, J. Collins, A. Derge, J. Chronis, K. Christman. Third Row: J. Fass, R. Constantineau,

Planning the '66 Prom

As their float came down the street, Juniors realized how different it looked than it had the night before.

Concentration was the key word as Joyce Krueger worked to create her masterpiece unaware of all sound.

JUNIORS--Front Row: R. Hall, A. Hackbarth, M. Hartmann, D. Feucht. Second Row: B. Haugen, J. Feucht, R. Christenson, P. Frey, A. Hagen, J. Hackbarth, D. Dieball. Third Row: J.

Proudly Displaying Their 1967 Class Rings,

Applying their knowledge of proper laboratory procedure learned in chemistry, Dan Spielmann and Earl Christenson began an experiment.

Larry Burn's mind wandered as he thought of a new approach to his rebuttal. Debate was challenging but rewarding.

The expression on Joel Laufer's face indicated that there was something more than metal in his milling machine.

Mike Droese proudly accepted the Little Brown cup for his outstanding work as fullback on the varsity football squad.

Juniors Joined the Ranks of Upperclassmen

The Class of '68- at Last a Member of the Senior High

Starting off the year with an air of true confidence was something short of easy for this year's sophomore class. Emerging from Central panic-stricken in a strange new world, the class of '68 quickly settled down to the task of learning the ways of Hartford Union High School.

They found student life at Union nerve-racking but fun, study-laden yet active. They were always eager to join, willing to work, and overflowing with enthusiasm at the first kick-off.

As the year progressed these students gained experience--invaluable experience that directed them during the remainder of their first year under the senior high Oriole banner. Though they may have been just obscure underclassmen this year, the followers of today are the leaders of tomorrow.

Sophomore Class officers, Richard Aicher, Sharon Browne, Kathy Kowalczyk, and Tom Knoll looked for a bright future at H.H.S.

Black, B. Burdick, S. Brown. Fourth Row: S. Brace, D. Brath, R. Aicher, B. Brietkreutz, D. Becker, D. Below, A. Brenner, J. Boyd, R. Aufdermauer.

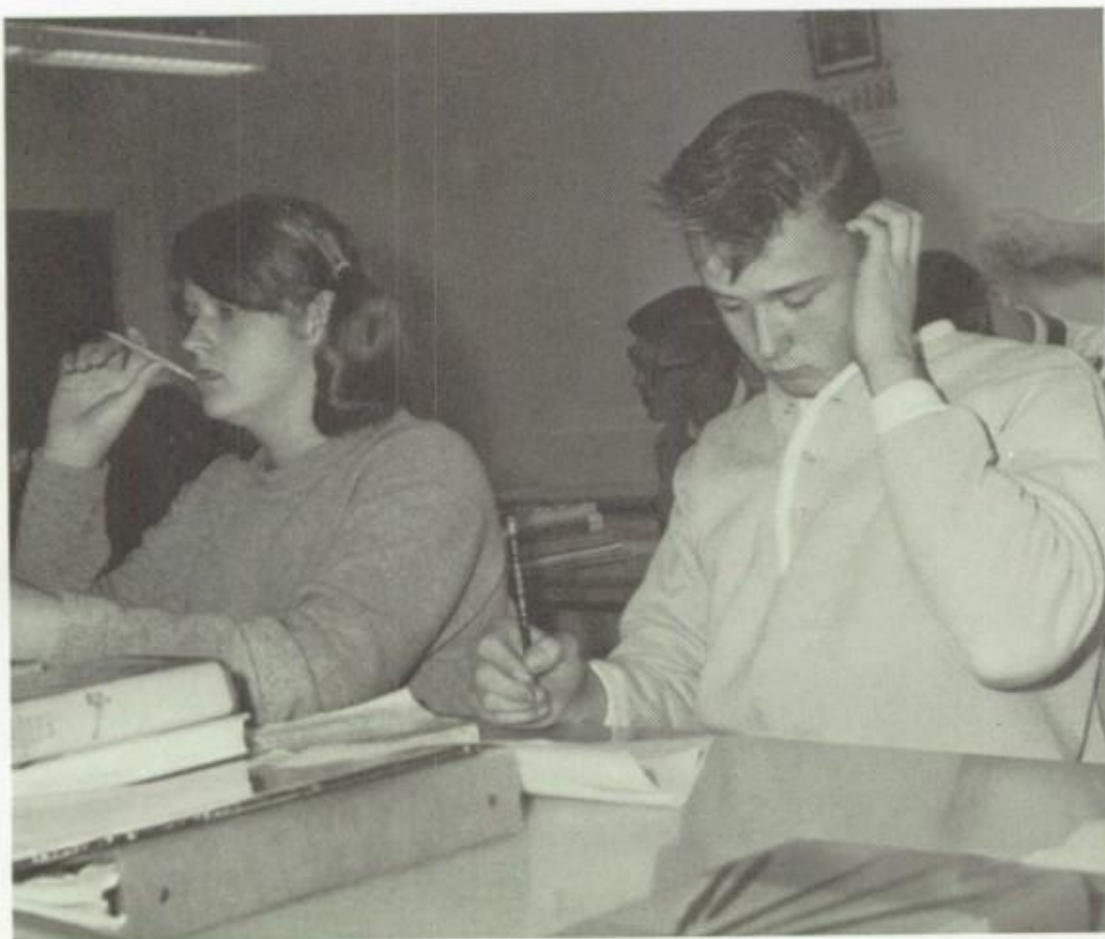

Expectant Faces of the Sophomores Filled the Narrow Halls of Union

Elaine Jacklin, Pam Forbes, and Doug Utter have discovered that Chemistry is really a "blast".

Eraser chewers and head scratchers always revealed themselves during exam time. Concentration seemed to be the right method, but the answer just didn't come.

The air was filled with excitement and the street lined with spectators as the Homecoming Parade proceeded.

Sophomore year meant a new world of Industrial Arts to be explored by many boys.

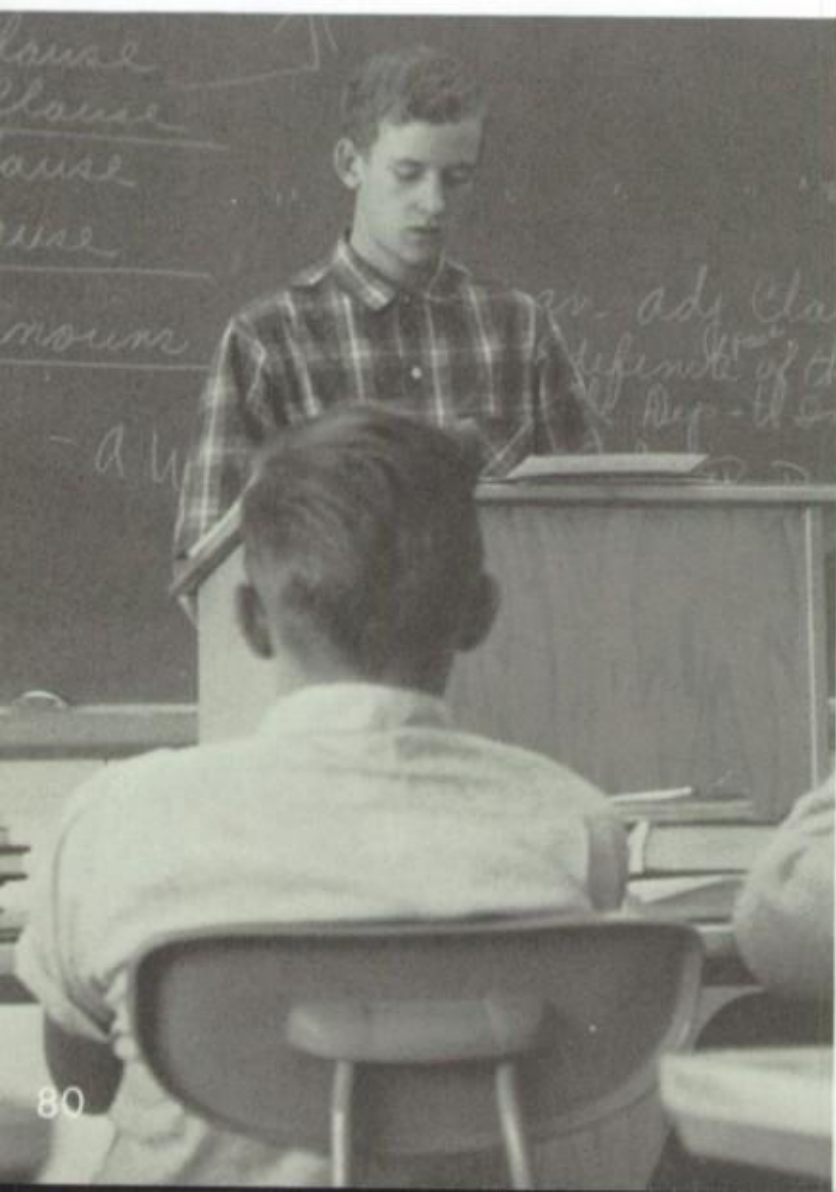

SOPHOMORES--Front Row: M. Cypher, C. Butzler, M. Christopherson, K. Chaplin. Second Row: M. Delaney, J. Dallman, S. Burmeister, B. Coffey, P. Coffey. Third Row: D. Cook, J.

Daniels, M. Cull, D. Degeler, L. Christenson. Fourth Row: E. Christenson, P. Cozadd, J. Buntrock, P. Carey, C. Buss, J. Dalsky, A. Christopherson.

Wise Sophomores Looked Into the Future

Unaware that he was posing for a photographer, Mike Cull attempted to enlighten his audience.

Sophomore biology students worked thoughtfully on a test in an attempt to express the knowledge they had accumulated in the previous weeks.

Sophomores seemed to enjoy chemistry class, just a little more than usual when they were allowed to wear bermudas.

Chuck Lopas attempted to solve his problem by mathematical means, but the outcome remained questionable.

and Set Their Goals

Frigge, J. Dukelow, D. Faust, C. Dukelow, T. Dietzler, T. Dillon, B. Frey. Fourth Row: M. Elsinger, D. Dunn, Da. Fenske, W. DeMerchant, D. Dietenberger, D. Frey, J. Droese.

Big Ideas Arrived with the Sophomores

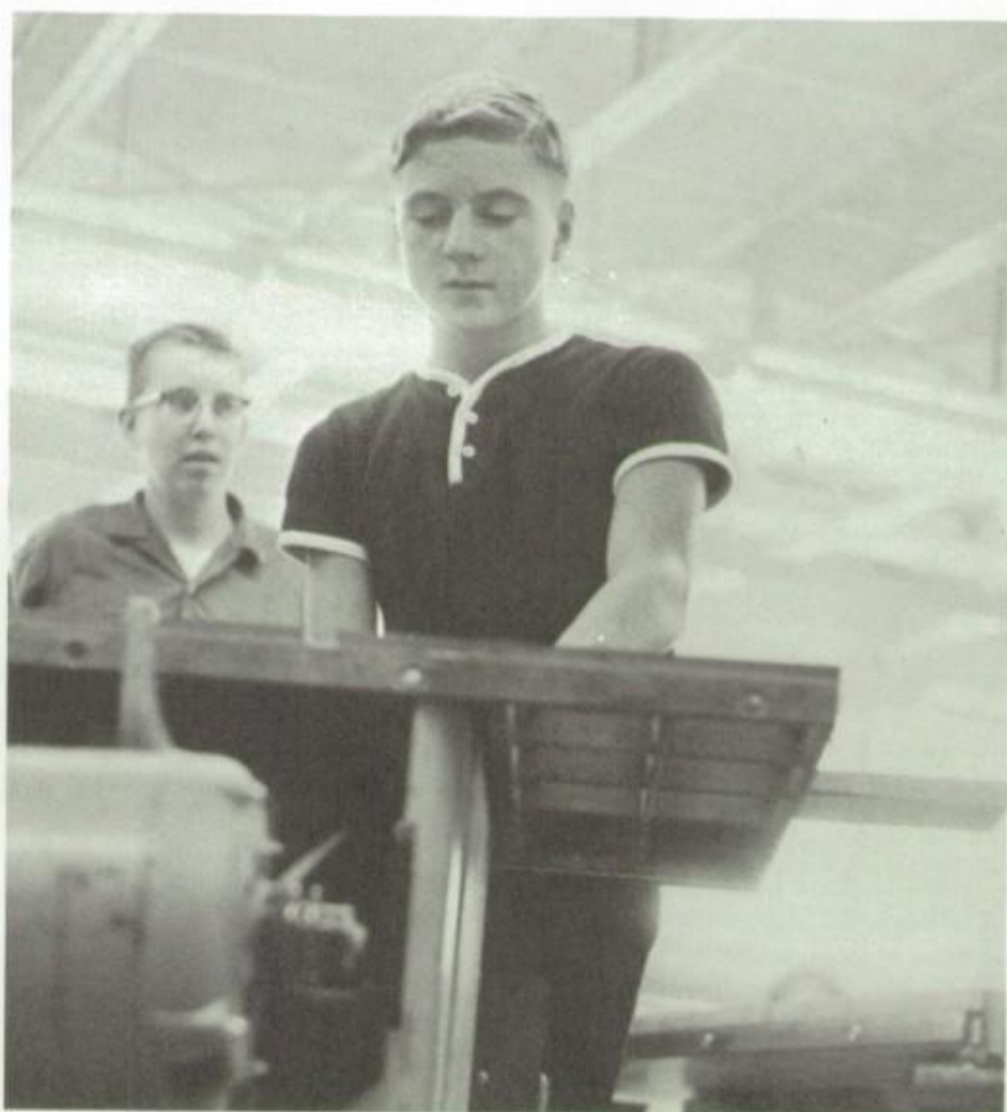

SOPHOMORES--Front Row: S. Hackbarth, F. Funk, R. Grndrum, M. Gurtner. Second Row: B. Glover, M. Heimerl, S. Heimermann, L. Heimerman, J. Hader, G. Gehl, J. Hahn. Third Row:

G. Hauser, M. Gillessen, J. Hauptert, K. Held, T. Hansen, D. Hecker, B. Grndrum. Fourth Row: R. Hefter, J. Goratowski, D. Hauptert, T. Heimerl, E. Gundrum, B. Hart.

Mickey Elsinger and Bob Luckiesh investigated the intricate parts of the Bunsen burner.

This sophomore stood expressionless at his table saw, guiding the wood through its course.

Peering attentively through his rimless glasses, this sophomore seemed completely engrossed in the workings of his machine.

"That test sure was a disaster. I just couldn't bear to look at it again." Don't worry we were all in the same boat.

Their Struggle to Succeed Was Worthwhile

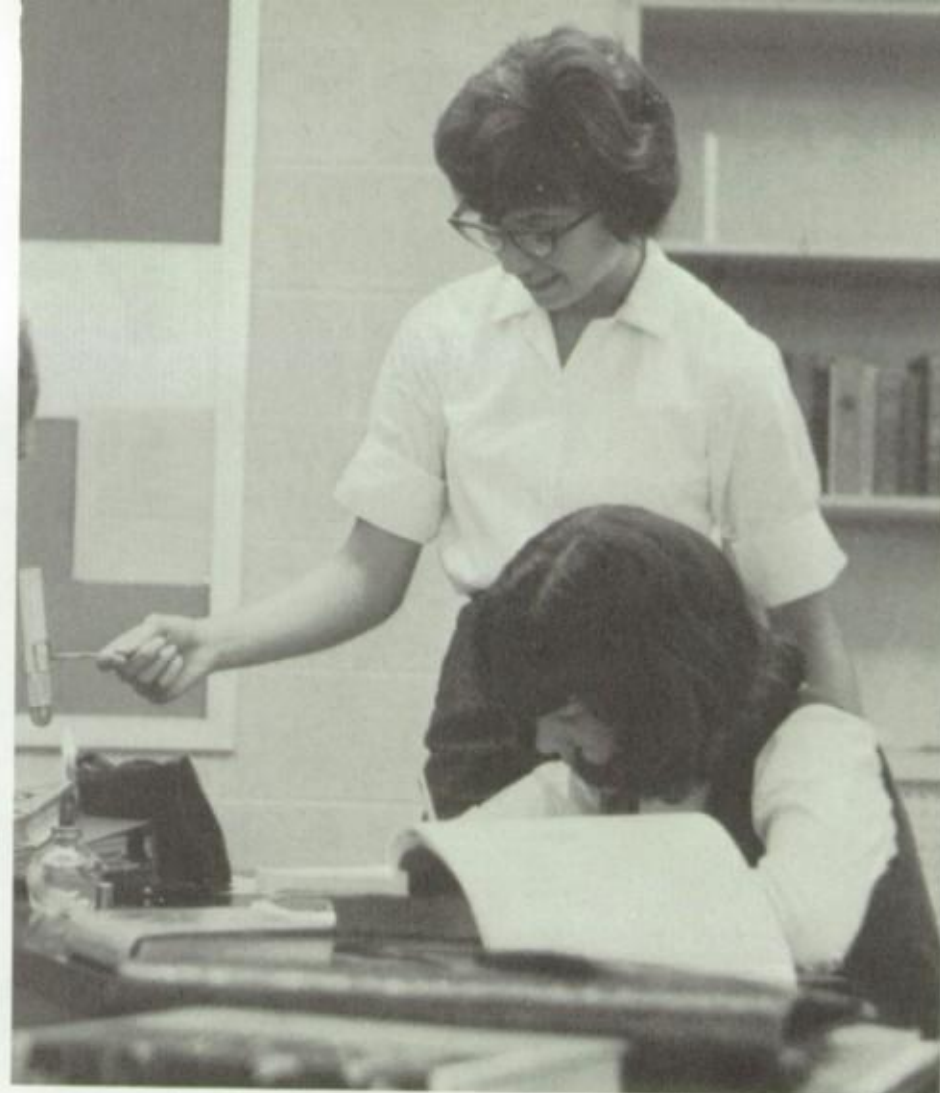

SOPHOMORES—Front Row: J. Kempfer, D. Kling, G. Hoffmann, D. Hetzel. Second Row: S. Kirchner, J. Kehl, P. Holberg, C. Hollenstein, B. Henninger. Third Row: G. Koch, B. Jaskowiak, D. Janzer, K. Jahnke, E. Jacklin. Fourth Row: P. Knack, L. Justman, T. Knoll, S. Hesprich, R. Kellbach, R. Justman, K. Horst.

Dorothy Bublit and Kathy Chaplin were pleased when they at last found the word they were looking for.

First we mixed all the ingredients together, then heated it just enough to make our own design on the ceiling. And then . . .

Knowledge of Greater

T. Lackas, S. Klumb. Fourth Row: R. Konrath, B. Larry, J. Lackas, C. Krueger, G. Kraynick, C. Koepsell, C. Lisko, B. Langer, R. Leivick.

SOPHOMORES--Front Row: S. Markeland, N. Malchek, C. Marek, M. Martinek. Second Row: P. Mamerow, B. Malchek, A. Luedtke, J. Manke, E. Miller, S. Matenaer. Third Row: B. Luedtke, R. Luedcke, S. Lubbert, R. Loosen, F. Merkes, W. Meister, K. MacPherson, J. Lulich. Fourth Row: E. Michelsen, J. McDonald, C. Mack, D. Maher, C. Lopas, R. Luckiesh, R. Mergenthale, C. Michelsen, H. Mueller.

Scope Was Presented to the Sophomores

Pour, stir, add more, check the thermometer, write in notebook, do over to make sure you were right, read the Biology notes.

Everyone seemed to have only one thought in mind--getting those letters finished before the time ran out.

The Successful Sophomores Will Produce a

The sophomores found that roaming the networks of Union Halls was a challenge.

Underlying factors in the success of the sophomore class were willingness to work and study.

Fine Junior Class

To Mr. Robbin's biology students, happiness was escaping from the classroom for short jaunts around the building to study nature.

Sophomores clustered together and caught an eyeful at the Homecoming parade.

SOPHOMORES--Front Row: D. Wiedmeyer, W. Wittenberger, C. Weber, J. Wiedmeyer. Second Row: A. Zimmerman, D. Wendt, T. Wiedmeyer, A. Wild, S. Weber, J. Weber, B. Wittig, J. Wetzel.

After reading the Odyssey, Sophomore Latin students referred to a map of the early Roman conquests.

Biology held their attention, as they learned new and interesting things. Experiments helped them and were a lot of fun to do.

The Sophomores Added a Lot of New Spirit

Ronnie Gundrum hammered away on the anvil, and tested his completed weld for strength.

Amazed by the Frog-Annoyed by Shakespeare

These girls listened intently to the wise words of their teacher hopefully expecting to learn something.

The pep assembly did a good job of pepping up everyone as can be seen by their happy faces.

Activities

Happiness is what goes on during high school activities--A football game with a dance following, the loud cheers at a pep rally, being on the winning volleyball team, or just being a part of making high school life worth living.

Oriole Staff Faced the Constant Problem of Weekends spent writing, 7th hour spent counting and a lot of the time spent on copy, was typical of our affluent copy staff.

Debbie Weber, Don Quandt, and Bill Krug of the Oriole business staff kept busy by the pleasing task of counting.

ORIOLE STAFF

Many times the words, "this yearbook is for the birds", could be heard coming from the Oriole room. Meeting all frustrations, the Oriole staff produced the biggest and possibly the best Oriole Hartford High has ever had. It did prove to be for the birds--the Orioles, that is.

ORIOLE STAFF--Front Row: Mr. Benka, B. Frey, P. Roets, K. Stapleton, S. Jaeckel. Row Two: C. Zurn, B. Browne, A. Rudersdorf, T. Hattori, D. Scott, M. Findling. Row Three: G. Hildebrandt, K. Heintz, M. Langenecker, K. Ehmke, B. Hildebrandt, L. Multerer, S. Roethle. Row Four: D. Weber, L. Weston, D. Quandt, P. Stapleton, G. Roemer, B. Krug, C. Frey, C. Lopas.

Having to Meet the Deadlines Each Month

The editor and all of the staff members of the Oriole worked together to meet their deadlines.

After being caged up in the Oriole room most of the year we had to break out and be civilized.

There was never a leisure moment for the members of the typing staff. There was always plenty of typing.

Sheryl Jaeckel and Laura Multerer read over some outlines and headlines making sure everything was just right.

Constant Awareness of the Things Happening

Just as it is important for each person to keep informed about current affairs, it is important that every student keep informed about the student life in their school. The Orange & Black saw to it that HHS has a well-informed student body. O & B reporters sought out every piece of news and presented them to the school through the school paper.

Besides the usual news and sports scores, the Orange & Black featured several specials such as the Senior Spotlight, Who's Who and a joke section.

Mardell Becker demonstrated the newest addition to the Orange and Black - a Strip printer, which prints headlines.

Phyllis Lohr, Mardell Becker, and Richard Schmidt combined fun and work while doing some important Orange and Black typing.

Publishing a school newspaper includes many jobs, big and small, one such job included page organization.

Orange & Black co-editor, Gloria Krahn, learned that publishing a paper is an involved process.

Around You Was a Key to Good O & B Reporting

This is how the Orange and Black looked in the layout stage. Gloria Krahn, Phyllis Lohr, and Mardell Becker "think" in order to get just the right layout.

Jeanne Sturm and Marie Schulz passed the year by working on the O. & B.

Problems of the Student Body Were Heard

Making Homecoming a fall fiesta, helping the needy, donating money to the AFS club and earning money for scholarships that were given to deserving seniors of our school only scratched the surface of the work done by the student council.

Behind the scenes, our thirty representatives worked hand in hand as a team, promoting school spirit, improving student-teacher relationships, and trying to bring about an organized student body.

Looking over the records, Student Council found they were a little short of money. It was time for another candy sale.

In the Christmas assembly each Student Council "brownie" told Santa Claus which teachers had been good to their Students.

Glenn Lehman tried to convince Janice Bublitz that it was possible to get something for nothing.

Our boys in Viet Nam needed help and we were there to give it to them. The Student Council sponsored a school wide donation so everyone could help.

Student Council's Main Objective - Good Will

Everyone seemed excited over the prospect of the candy sale. Carol Williams was already trying to sell hers.

Carol Williams and Phyllis Lohr were doubtful about Gloria Krahns idea, but she insisted.

Librarians Kept Books and Students Orderly

Open doors of the Library welcomed every adventurer and explorer into the realm of fantasy and realism. The many shelves filled with books, old and new, provided a large selection for the undecided reader. The atmosphere was just right for going back through our history-filled years or for predicting our unsure future.

It is to be expected that everyone can not pick out just the right book they would fully enjoy. For this very reason we have a very efficient Library Club. The girls in this organization work closely with the books and are familiar with them.

The Library Club presented book talks to the FTA and were hostesses to the teachers' meetings.

Miss Buckley relaxed after a hard day while student librarians discussed the intricacies of running a library.

Debaters Discovered the Challenge Involved

A tin box filled with 3 x 5 cards, a hushed classroom filled with air-crackling tension, a student ready to present convincing arguments--this is high school debate.

This year Hartford High's teams were challenged by the proposition, "Resolved: Should the Federal Gov't establish a system of Compulsory Arbitration in Labor management Disputes." As the first few weeks passed, the various teams were established, and the debaters, gathering information from the scarce material available and helping each other along, worked diligently on the affirmative or negative side of this year's topic. Starting out as "green" recruits under the directions of Mr. Giebel the participating students were given an opportunity to travel to numerous other schools to polish and refine their argumentative techniques and, needless to say, as the debates came to an end, these students were all well-seasoned debaters.

in This Year's Controversial Resolution

As Larry Burns spoke, Ron Derge, Jerry Hartman and Mary Findling found a need for reshuffling their note cards.

Peter Quandt, Peggy Wenniger, and Annette Brenner listened intently to their fellow debaters.

Ron Derge had a hard time convincing Gwen Gehl and Dorothy Bublitz of his position during practice debate.

Debaters Larry Burns and Peter Quandt carefully went over the topic which they were to debate.

Everyone listened carefully to Peter Quandt as he read the quote that won the match and the handsome trophy.

In Mid-December the Work Began - Selecting,

FORENSICS

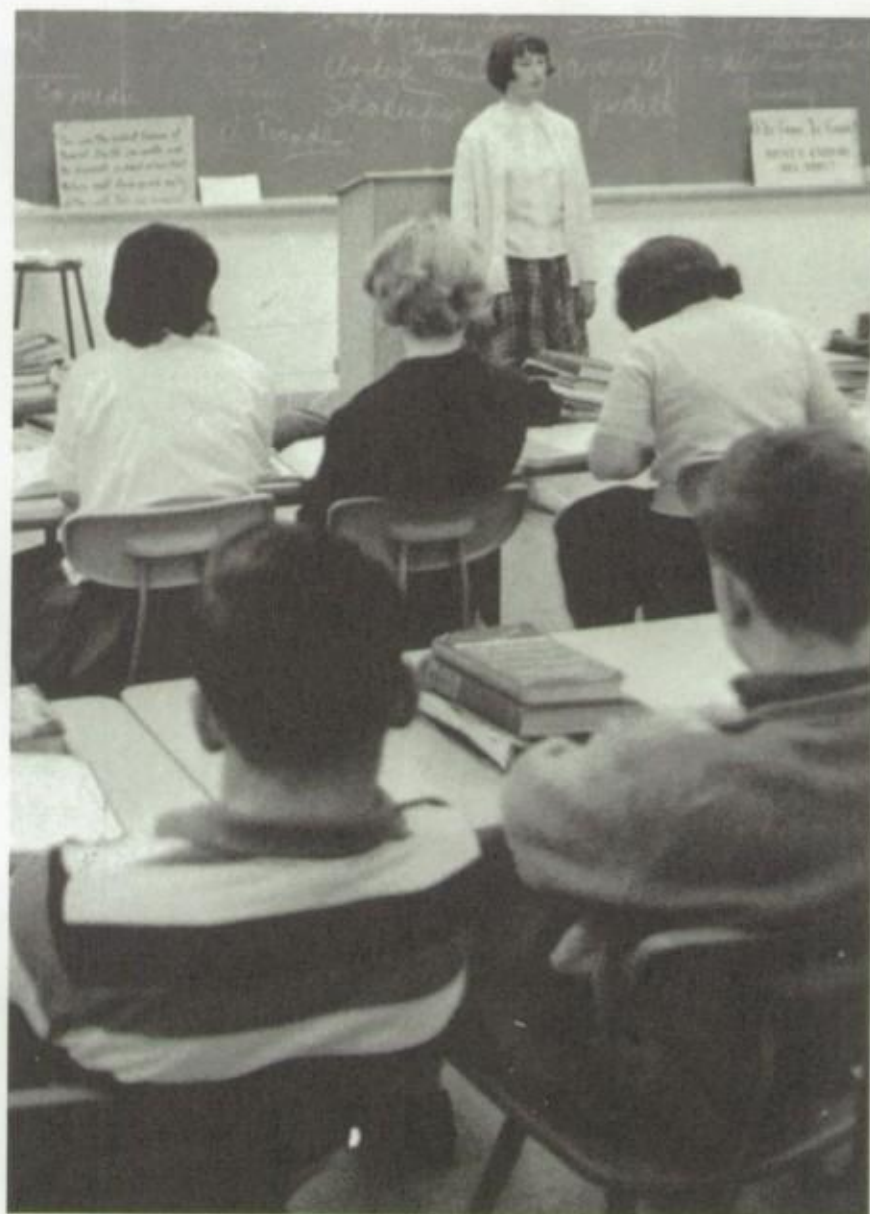

After deciding which area of Forensics to participate in, the selection of a speech was necessary. When the preliminaries had finally been finished there was only one more hurdle to cross before the first eliminations took place. That one thing was probably the most important. Practice, practice, practice . . .

Once the contest began, it never ended until the outstanding performers had survived school-wide, district, and state competition.

Having accumulated points, many participants joined National Forensics League this year.

Shirley Weber practiced her serious declamation while the English class gave her their undivided attention.

Jim Schwartz, John Marsh, and Mike Moratz practiced their play reading while Coach Dickhoff supervised them.

The freshmen-sophomore elimination contest was the result of hours of practice for these play readers.

While forensic contestants nervously awaited their turns, some male spectators calmly contemplated these participants.

Preparing, Memorizing, and Then Practicing

Play reading, a favorite choice of many of the students, took long hours of hard work and practice to reach the desired perfection.

Anticipation and excitement can describe the feelings of these forensic students as they patiently awaited the contest results.

Forensics was not all work as is shown by Peggy Wenninger as she relaxed before the tedious work of practice began after school.

Judging forensics was not always an easy job, but this judge was apparently delighted with the choices he picked for winners in the contest.

Students Benefited from Band's Talents

Band members again formed individual groups to give the students the benefit of their varied talents. The Pep Band, playing at our pep rallies and games, the Dixieland Band livening our school dances, and the Pit Band, helping to make our musicals a success are evidence of their ability.

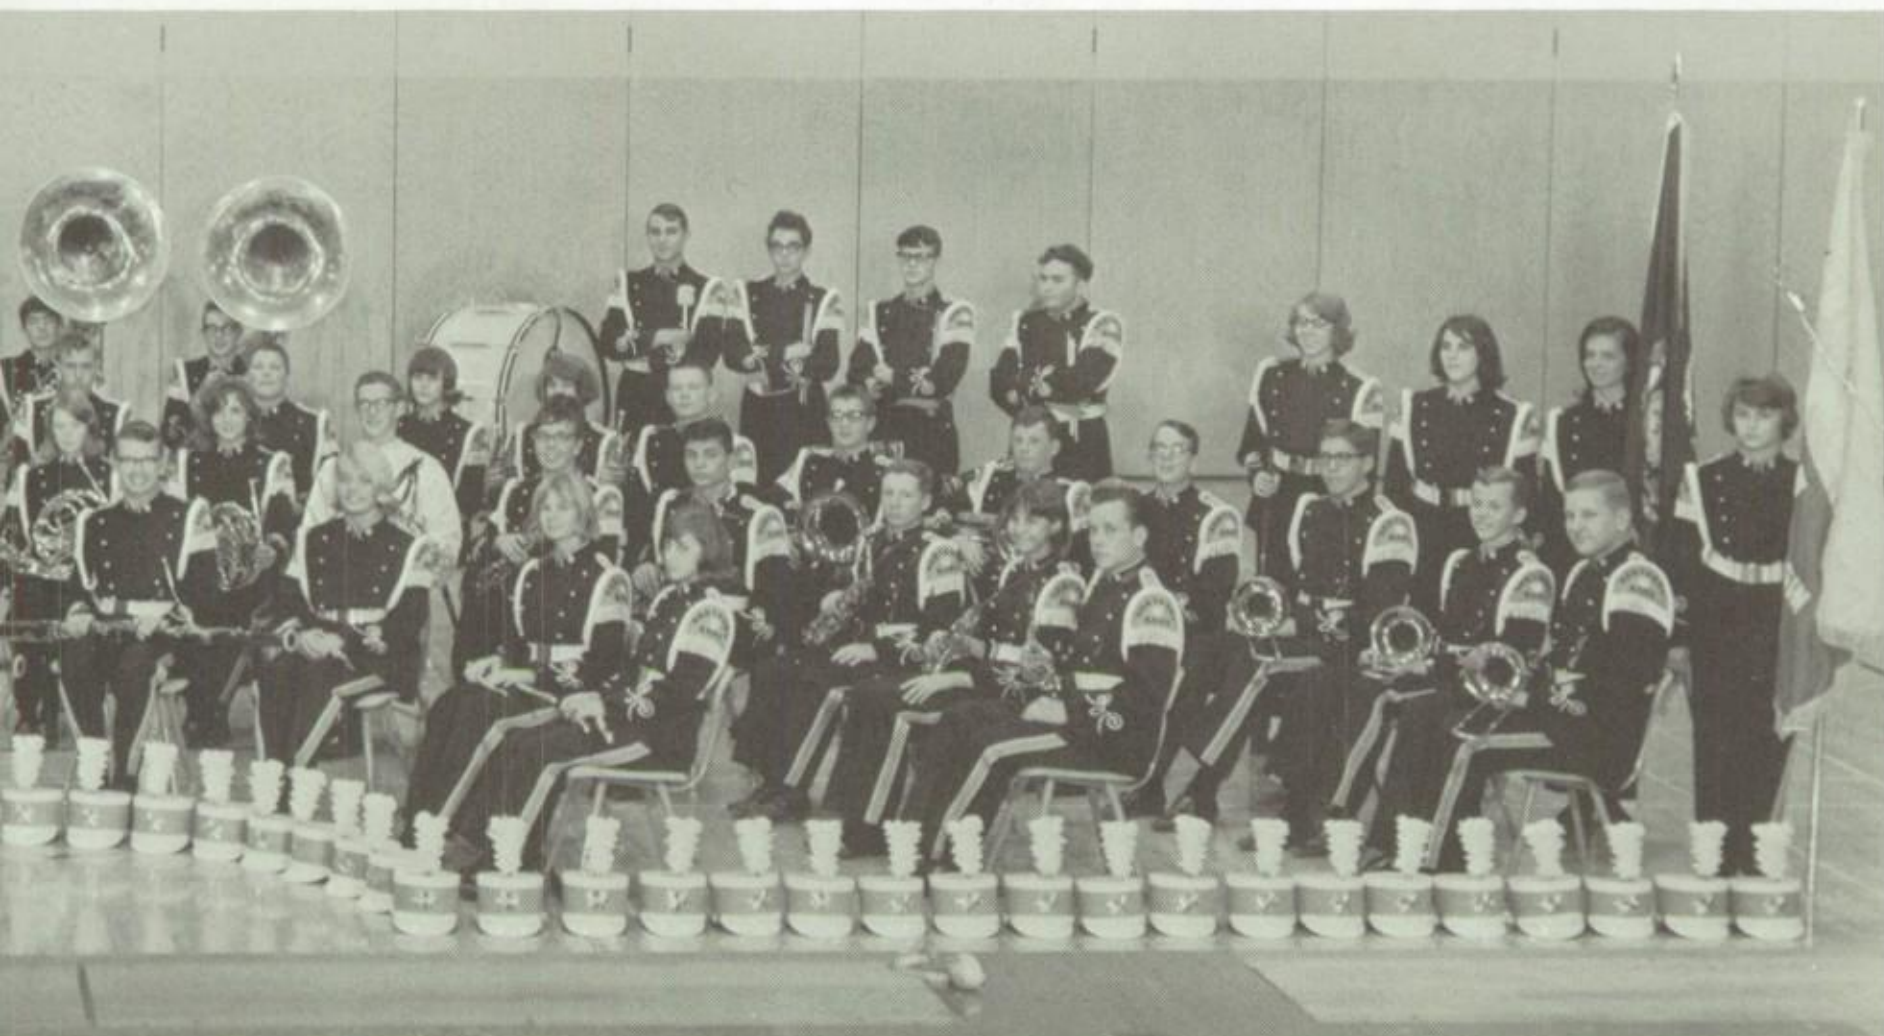

For many years past, the HHS band has emerged from district competitions with a class A rating. This year was no exception. Mr. Schneider led the entire band and individual soloists to another A rating in the District Solo and Ensemble this year.

These students realized that a variety of instruments and a lot of practice are necessary for an accomplished band.

Dennis Murphy, one of many talented musicians in the school band, displayed his masterful technique.

Pat Murphy, with his knack for playing the drums, has added a definite new sound to the Dixieland and Pep Bands.

The correlation of sound and timing are acquired only through hard work as these students well know, so practice they must.

Mr. Schneider studied his music carefully while he directed the band. Every detail was important.

Carol Zurn and Wendy Wittenberger supplied the band with the soft, sweet music of the flute. They couldn't afford to miss a day of practice.

Our Hearts Sang with

The first job before band practice was to assemble their instruments and warm up.

This sextet put in many hours of hard work before the results were satisfactory. "Practice makes perfect" guided them on.

Trombone players used every trick in the book to make their music like professionals.

Frank Guntly adjusted his stand while the second chair player looked for the music.

The band, under the direction of Mr. Schneider, participated in many school activities.

Wind, rain, snow, nor dark of night kept the band from doing their job.

Delight to the Melodies Played by the Band

Donna Faust performed while Mr. Schneider "made sure her practice was perfect."

Football season meant hard work and long hours of practice for the band. But the practice was worth it, the band put on many fine half time shows.

Bill Keopsell concentrated as he practiced for sectional. Everyone was expected to play their best.

The band made its contribution to school spirit by playing during pep assemblies, which proved to be a valuable asset for such activities.

Talent and Harmony Produced Beautiful Song

Anxiety filled the faces of the choir, while preparing to sing the spirit of Christmas into the hearts of their audience.

Miss Knoll tried her hand at directing the band, while deciding whether instruments or voices stay in tune better.

CHORUS

Talent filled the gymnasium Chorus presented their annual concerts. Everyone in the community and school was invited and few missed them. They gave new meaning and renewed appreciation to music. Assisted by the Pit Band, the musical, "So This Is Paris", was successfully presented by the Chorus.

Miss Knoll worked diligently with every member and in return the chorus did their best to please her and their audience. With such co-operation the chorus succeeded in everything they did.

Talent Filled the Chorus Room with Music

Cathy Manley, Mary Brinkman, and Mary Roggenbauer listened intently to Miss Knoll's directions for their next song.

Mr. Schallhorn wondered how he'd ever make "Paris Deb-utantes" out of Diane Hoffmann and Andrele Hackbarth.

The figures and smiling faces of the Girls Chorus added much joy to the music room behind the stage.

Members of FTA Believed in Planning Ahead

The trip to Madison turned out to be fun and interesting. FTA members found some ruins of an ice carnival.

Judy Quandt, Loine Wittenburg and Mary Roggenbauer listened carefully to the plans for the SWEA Convention at Madison.

FTA

On February 25 FTA members attended discussions held at Madison on the problems encountered in a teaching career. They were entitled, "Wanted: Talents for Teaching." Hartford's future teachers have sent magazines to the Peace Corps to aid in teaching, sold mums during Homecoming Week, and guided the parents to the classrooms during Open House.

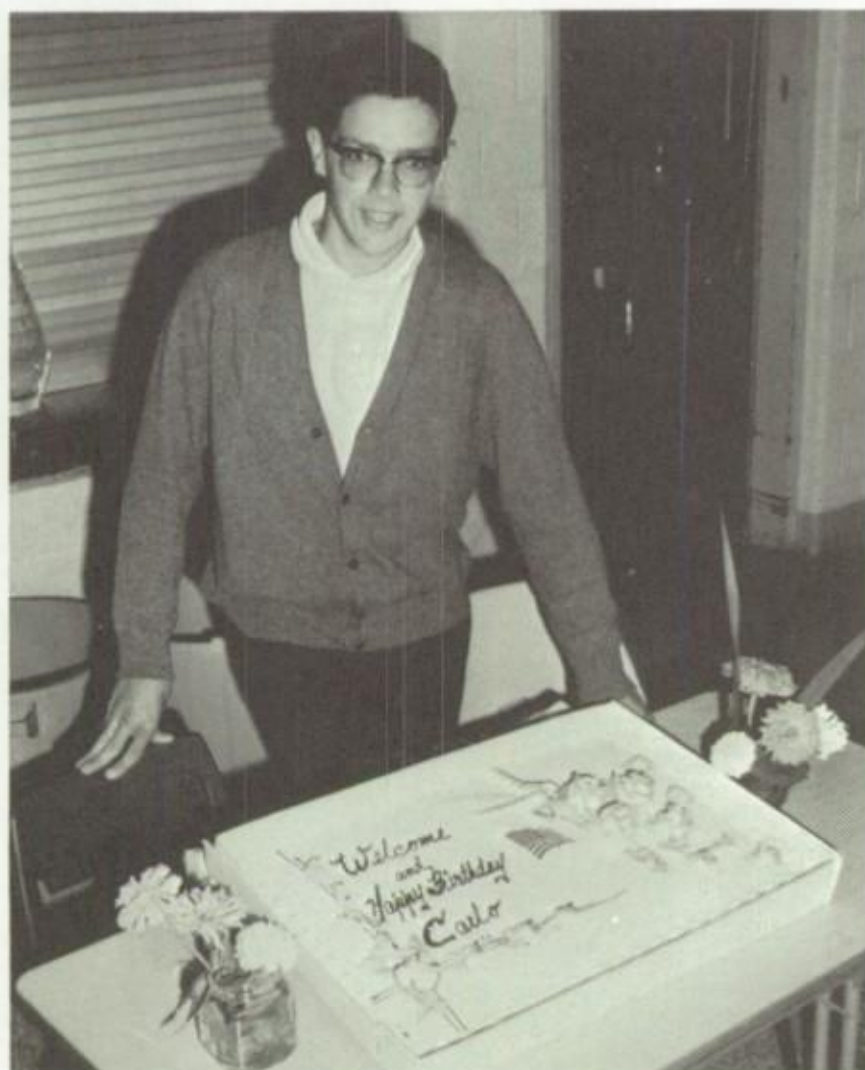

The purpose of FTA is for each member to discover if a teaching career is really for him.

Carlo Brought a Bit of Italy to Hartford

AFS

AFS has been one of Hartford's busiest clubs. They began the year by introducing Carlo Guanzirali, our Italian foreign exchange student, to the student body. Carlo has proved to be a very likeable person and has made friends with everyone.

The doughnut sales every Thursday and the calendar sales were extremely profitable for the club.

In December, the Harlem Diplomats visited Hartford and played Hartford's faculty. The Diplomats of course, won.

AFS sponsored a number of dances, too. Friend met friend while others danced away the tension built up from the preceding basketball game.

Carlo was happy and surprised by this king-size birthday cake. AFS did their best to make him feel at home.

French and Spanish Formed One Organization

MODERN FOREIGN LANGUAGE CLUB

A new organization, the Modern Foreign Language Club, made its debut at HHS this year. The club is composed of high school French and Spanish students. It had formerly been the Spanish Club, but with the introduction of French the two language departments combined and formed the Modern Foreign Language Club. The French and Spanish teacher, Miss Dickhoff, was the club advisor.

For a new club the Modern Foreign Language Club was very active. It participated in the Homecoming festivities, made a contribution to the Student Council Vietnam fund, and had a Christmas party and an end-of-the-year picnic.

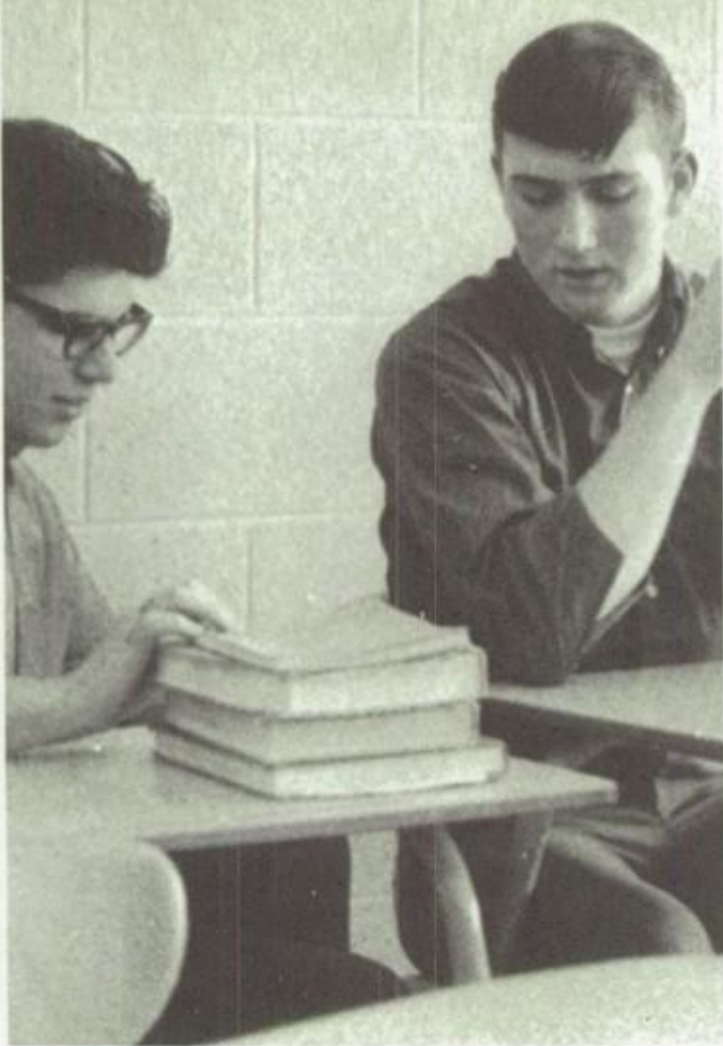

The purpose of the club was to acquaint its members with the customs and traditions of the French and Spanish people. Club members achieved this purpose and had fun doing it.

Bob Browne led the discussion on the movie they had just seen during the Modern Foreign Language Club meeting.

Fun Was Fun - Whether in Spanish or French

It took real concentration and attention in the language lab as these students discovered.

Karen Stapleton and Carol Williams found something of interest to discuss between conjugations and declensions in Spanish.

AFS Imported Something Special - Carlo

Carlos overcame his shyness with the help of his "second" understanding family. Mr. and Mrs. Reed made him feel at home.

In his spare time Carlos enjoyed some typical American sports.

Suzie Gruenhagen presented the 007 award to secret agent Carlos Guanzirolli.

Hartford float building really gave Carlo a sample of American hard work and fun combined. Everyone was filled with the usual Homecoming spirit.

The Latin Banquet reminisced through history as Dan Biggs and Ted Hattori showed how the gladiators did it in Roman times.

A Highlight of the

LATIN CLUB

Fulfilling the dire need for a better understanding of foreign countries, their people and their customs, was the true function of the Latin language club. By encouraging students to participate in club programs, members of Latin Club were able to gain a deeper, warmer understanding of the ancient Romans as well as other peoples around the world with Latin-based languages.

Tunic and toga-clad, the neo-Romans of Hartford High gorged themselves with mouth-watering food in the festive atmosphere of the Latin banquet, "Cena Latina." It was activities such as this that instilled in club members not only a feeling of fun and enjoyment, but also an awareness of the importance that cooperation and understanding play in the promotion of peace in our troubled world.

A motto of the Romans, "Eat, drink, and be merry," was followed by slaves as well as their masters at the Latin banquet.

Orchesis Girls Showed Skill in Modern Dance

Hard practice by members of the Orchesis Club resulted in their performance given on April 29 and 30. "Existence Through Motivational Experiences" dealt with birth, death, and hereafter. This club remains relatively unknown throughout the year, and then blossoms into existence for their annual program. The program represents the coordination and creativity of the club.

The purpose of the club is to stimulate creativity and grace. Through dance, the girls learn grace and coordination.

There are 13 members of Orchesis. Vacancies are filled that are left by the retiring Seniors, thus the membership is held constant. Membership in this organization is really a worthy honor.

A lot of limbering up practices went into this movement, but Patsy Gehl accomplished her feat.

Christine Paulson was in deep concentration so she portrayed the meaning.

These, the members of Orchesis, deserved our recognition. Their object was to interpret their moods and expressions into meaningful movement.

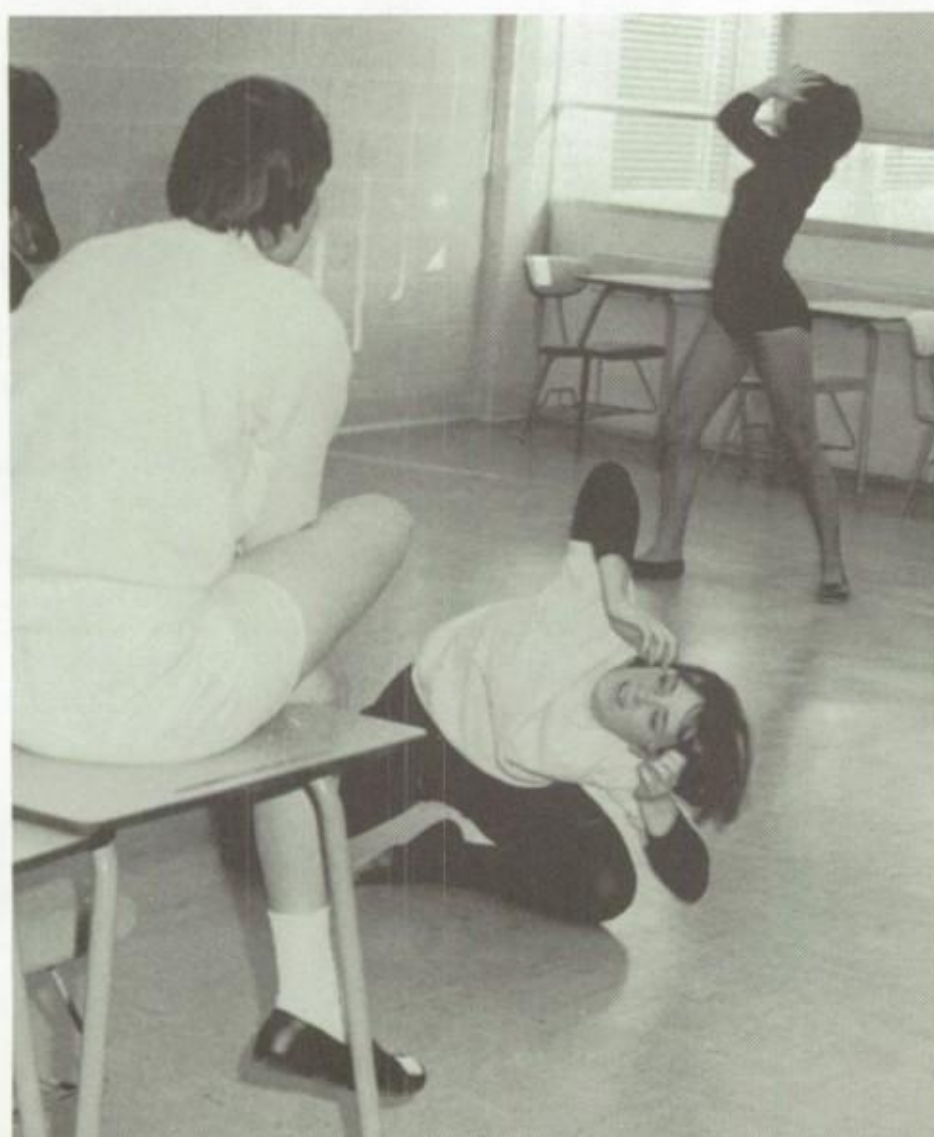

When rehearsals began to drag Orchesis members stopped to store up the energy that was badly needed.

Pat Harris and Sue Heintz led the way as Orchesis practice concluded, ending long hours of determined efforts by each girl.

Orchesis Members Know Music Reflects Moods

Carol Biggs strained to create her intended impression while Miss Ferstl watched and gave her helpful advice.

Attired in the usual garb for Orchesis practice sessions, Pam Forbes "stressed" her point.

Plenty of Strenuous Exercise Acquainted

G.A.A.

Boys are not the only ones interested in sports and physical fitness. Girls, also, have a keen interest in these things. Fun and physical fitness are the purposes of G.A.A..

Along with the fun of participating in such activities as basketball, volleyball and tumbling went exertion and often exhaustion. Each girl knew this and took it in stride.

Its members found G.A.A. to be a recreational break during the week. They had a chance to participate in competitive activities and gain the recognition of the other members when they became organization's champs in that activity. Hard work, determination, and the desire to better oneself physically and mentally as well were determining factors in the success of G.A.A..

Eager to get the volleyball tournament underway, these G.A.A. members combined their efforts to set up the nets.

Recreation for Those Who Participated in GAA

The girls in GAA really knew how to get into the big leagues fast. Nothing but the best for them.

First things first. Before the game could begin teams had to be signed up. It was a hard task to match abilities of the other team.

Modernized Agriculture Was Accomplished

Can you tell which corn is the best? We couldn't either; so Clarence Fuecht showed us which kind was the best.

Mr. Nicolson proudly presented the agriculture award to Dan Wagner as he smiled with pride.

Field and farm marked the setting for FFA, the Future Farmers of America. The organization taught the fundamentals of agriculture.

Hartford FFA is part of a national movement whose primary aim is the development of agricultural leadership, cooperation and citizenship. Their motto, "Learning to do, doing to learn, learning to live and living to serve", reflects FFA members' sincere objectives.

Activities open to them for participation included Purina Calf Projects, FFA State convention at Green Lake, Holstein Sire Calf Project, and the Cattle Congress at Waterloo, Iowa.

Before the annual banquet could begin, everyone had to find their name tag so visitors could be easily identified.

Members of F.F.A. were given an opportunity to display their accomplishments to their parents at the annual banquet.

The Future Farmers of America worked hard all year around for these shiny trophies, something well worth working for.

Hartford's F.F.A. group had a win in mind as they planned their float for this year's Homecoming parade. Members of the club combined their efforts to complete the job.

Agriculture in Extracurricular Activities

Addressing parents and guests at their annual banquet, these boys announced the program for the evening.

The speaker for the night had much to say to his audience on the broad subject of agriculture.

These F.F.A. members gathered to discuss the cow judging techniques used on a national scale.

B-Team Cheerleaders Brought Encouragement

CHEERLEADERS

Last year was a "new" year for the HHS cheerleaders—new skirts, new pompoms, new boy cheerleaders, and a new coach. With the help of Miss Dickhoff, cheerleading coach, the varsity cheerleaders raised enough money to buy the much-needed skirts, and as an extra, new pompoms—bigger and better than the old ones. These were important accomplishments, but the biggest accomplishment was the addition of a mascot and two boy cheerleaders, Sweeney and Ozzie. Because of this addition many new cheers were worked out and some old cheers were revised. Hard work and long hours of practice resulted in good HHS cheerleaders this year, despite cracked ribs, sore backs, and pulled muscles.

The energetic Junior Varsity cheerleaders did a fine job in keeping the spectators interested and enthusiastic.

Pompoms, mascots and summit meetings held the attention of the varsity cheerleaders during the pre-game time period.

Varsity cheerleader, Sharon Dietzler, managed a pretty smile while modeling the new varsity skirts.

The cheerleaders adorned Mr. Ugly, Bertie Neuberg, in his fashionable garb. This event was a highlight of the football season.

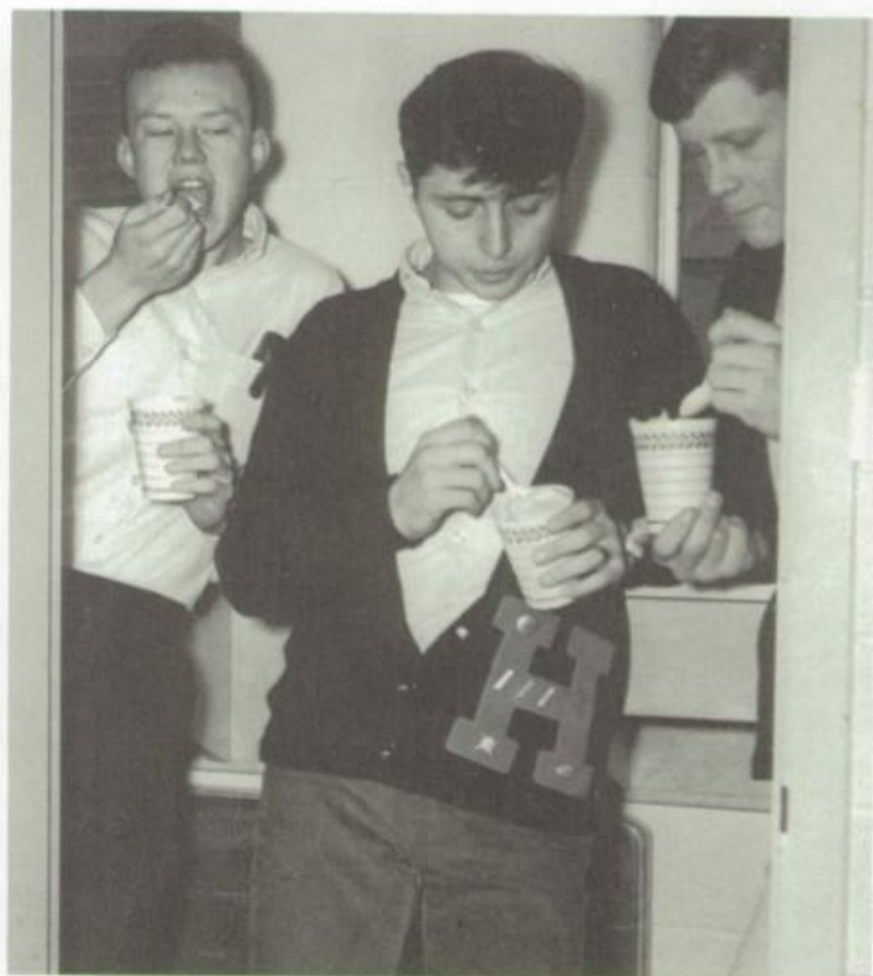

Brain and Brawn - The Ingredients of Men

LETTERMEN'S CLUB

Lettermen's Club, Hartford's only all-boy organization, has had a year of many worthwhile activities. The malt machine has given students a chance to alter their usual pattern of hot or cold lunches. They generously donated to the Vietnam cause. Many an industrious night was spent building their Homecoming float and window display.

To become a letterman, a boy must be outstanding in some sport or have participated in a sport for four years. A letter also goes to a team manager after 2 years.

This year, Hartford's 45 lettermen helped to bring about success in all of our sports.

Pat Stapleton, Don Quandt, and Rick Stuesser reaped the benefits of taking care of the malt machine-free malts.

Rick Stuesser, Dave Spuhler, and Pat Stapleton seemed to have found a spare moment to discuss their activities as lettermen.

With the coming of fall, the wind over the Hartford gridiron once more carried the sounds of crashing helmets and wild cheering.

Enthusiasm seemed to reach new heights and the ORIOLES turned in a stunning victory over Mayville, starting a season that was their best in a long time. Under the coaching of Mr. Larsen and Mr. Halsey, the team gave our arch-rival, first place Oconomowoc, its only scare of the season. Hartford was no longer the doormat to the conference; other schools respected us and they, too, called us the "NEW ORIOLES."

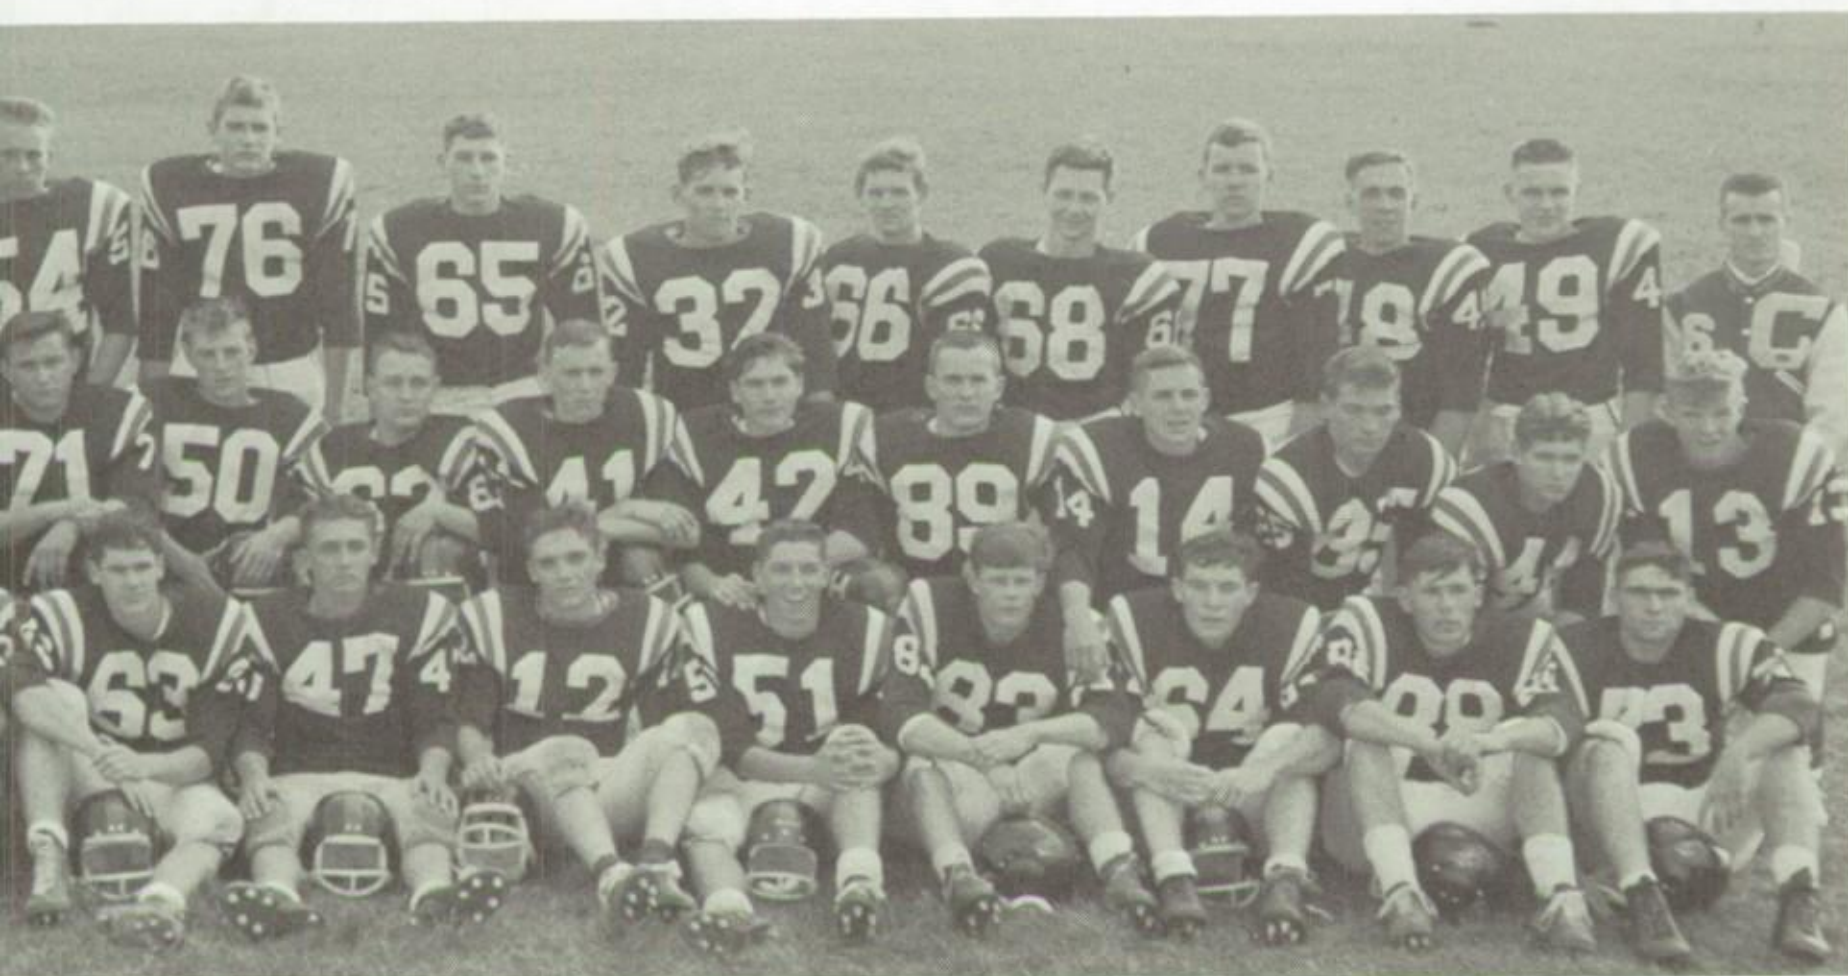

Next year the returning lettermen are certain to give the fans an even more successful season.

The Hartford defense waits patiently for the opposition's coach to coax his team onto the field.

Because of the strength and endurance of such runners as this, the J.V. squad placed second in the conference.

Cross country is purely a sport for the dedicated athlete. A runner must put in endless hours of practice to reach the state of physical and mental stamina needed to master the torturous two and two tenths miles between him and victory.

This year, as in the past, Hartford was fortunate to have a team with enough determination to meet these requirements. Under the inspired coaching of Mr. Grandine the Harriers practiced long and hard, day after day. Their diligent work was rewarded by placing third in the conference.

After the grueling run of the 2.2 mile course, comes the drudgery of waiting before you can find out how well the team did.

Pat Stapelton wondered what he could possibly have done to win that race.

Cross Country members waited for the gun to signal the start of the race.

Mr. Grandine, the proud coach of Hartford's cross-country team, announced the course of events for the meet.

Varsity Is in Last Place Again This Year

A-TEAM

With the return of five lettermen and four of them last season starters, Coach Krueger looked forward to a good season. But with all this going for Hartford, the Orioles still couldn't come up with those long-deserved wins. Even though Hartford played every game with a strong team effort, they couldn't come up with that needed offensive punch and defensive hustle to become a winning team.

Hartford's record doesn't tell everything. The Orioles lost 5 games by only 3 points and almost pulled off the upset of the year by nearly beating Cedarburg, the Braceland Conference Champions, but lost in the closing seconds by only a mere 2 points.

Kent Kienast attempted to score by taking advantage of an unguarded basket.

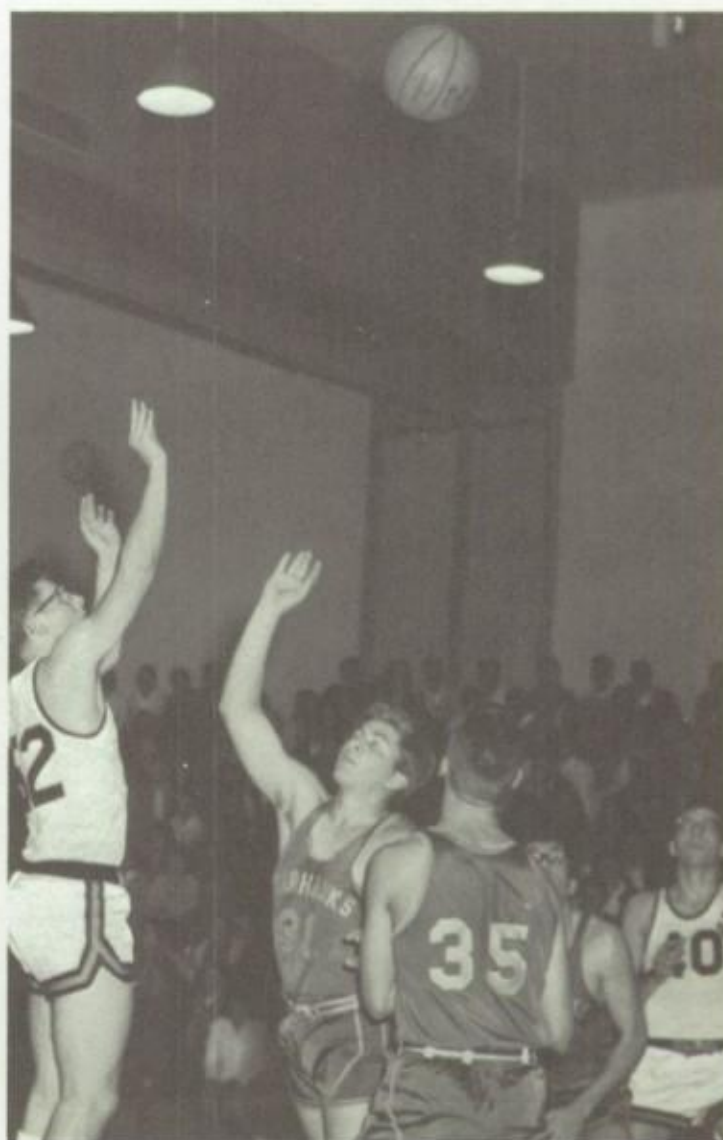

With the help of Darwin Derge, Dave Maeder concentrated all his efforts on keeping that ball, much to the dismay of his opponents.

Hartford Gained Long-Awaited Respect

Darwin Derge wanted to make sure one of our boys got the ball before the opponents did. This was the way to win.

Mike Kern, Mike Simpson, and Bill Mischo tried to get control of the ball so they could bring another victory.

JUNIOR VARSITY

Early in November one is turned to the start of the basketball season and enthusiastic sophomores are no exception. Many willing sophomore boys tried to make the B-team. From the 12 to 15 ballplayers he thought were best Coach Dobbe tried to find the best combination of five boys to start and carry most of the load of the season.

The B-team games were always exciting. To prove how exciting the games were this year the B-team played a triple overtime at West Bend. The best part of it was that Hartford won. The boys that made the squad should be commended for their work.

The crowd filled with suspense and the cheerleaders cheering their hardest helped our boys use their best strategy to show the opponents who was boss at Hartford.

"Faster, faster little ball, will they get you at all?" Steve Heimerl had quite a job keeping the ball away from the other players.

What a jump! Bob Ebert had Jim Mack fighting mad, while the rest of the amazed players stood with mouths open.

Intramural Activity Provided Organized Fun

INTRAMURALS

Some of the best competition sports-wise takes place in the gym after school on certain week nights. Generally, these clashes were not viewed by a multitude of fans, nor were the individual players cheered by a bevy of cheerleaders.

Nevertheless, these games were important to the individual who first "suited up" and in the ensuing game did their best to win.

Intramural athletes learn the same lesson as regular varsity competitors . . . that a thing worth doing is worth doing well.

White shirts versus bare backs, short against tall-Intramurals provide a challenge and competition for boys with extra energy.

A miss or two points? The split second, breathless moment was captured forever. Players waited, ready to proceed after the play.

The fans in the sparsely-filled bleachers were yelling themselves hoarse in a frenzy of enthusiasm. The center of their attention, a Hartford wrestler, circled his opponent warily: watching for an opening. Suddenly there was a blur of motion as the Oriole matman got the initial takedown and moved in for the pin. Shortly after, the clap of the referee's hand signaled another victory for Hartford.

Wrestling posed a true test of the individuals strength, agility and quick thinking. It was evident that this year's wrestlers were not lacking in these qualities, a result of Mr. Grandine's inspired coaching and the boys desire to succeed.

Before every match the wrestlers showed the spectators how they warmed for the nights' excitement and triumphs.

Twisting, tumbling, pinning, and flexed muscles are all part of a wrestling match. Everyone waited for a pin.

Central School

Happiness is looking back on a year filled with memories of exams, dances, homework, term papers, games, and friendships.

Freshmen Found High School Life a New and

To the freshmen at Central it always seems like a long time before they arrive at Union. It was no different with this year's freshmen. Looking ahead to next year, they planned their student life like that at Union. They sponsored several dances and produced a winning football and basketball team. Such organizations and activities as student council, cheerleading, forensics and Latin club were offered to them.

Students at the freshmen level are constantly increasing their ability to handle more advanced courses. Subjects such as Biology, geometry, and Latin are now offered to Central's freshmen. Team-teaching was introduced this year and was appreciated by many freshmen.

Industrious freshmen contributed to the growing success which will always be at Hartford High.

It would be nice to know the boy-attraction in this little corner.

Eager Freshmen followed the descending steps to their next class.

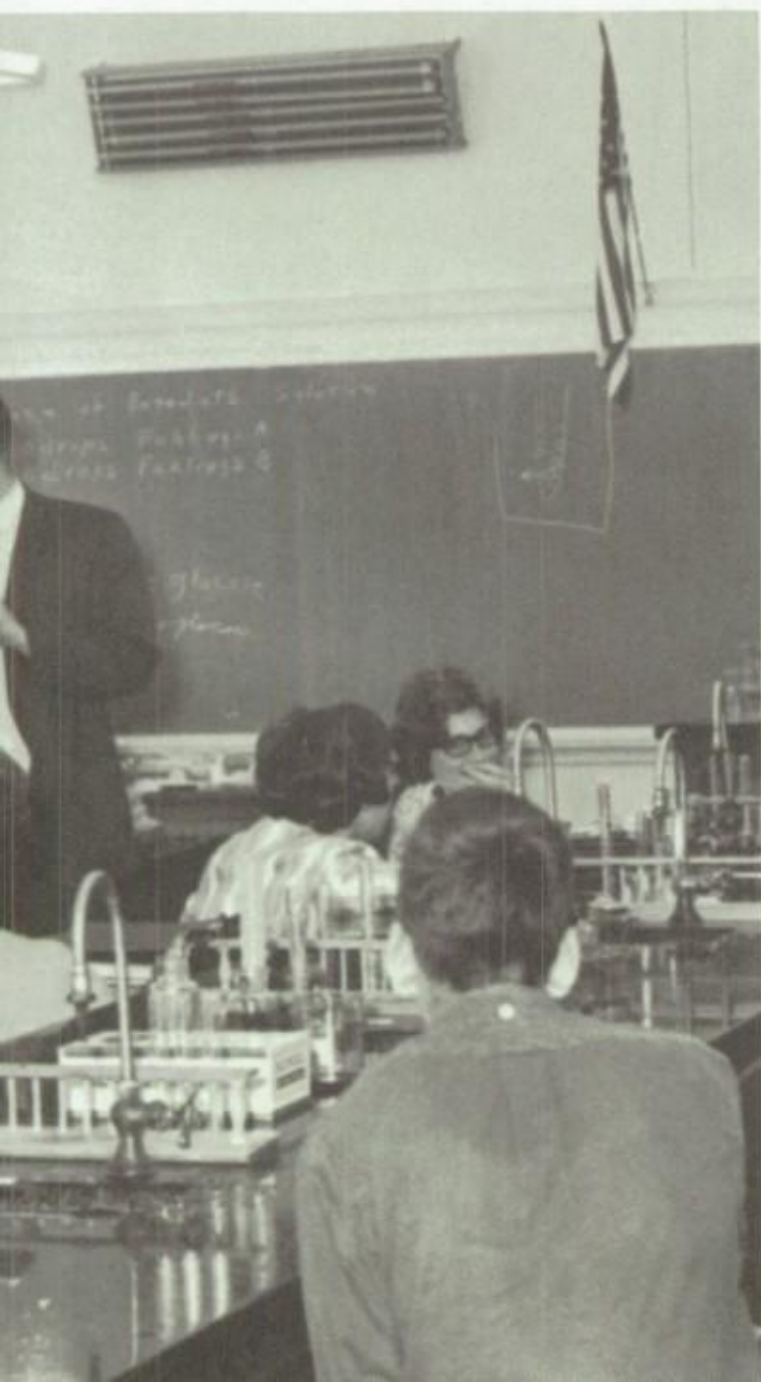

Demanding Experience

Diligence earns its rewards and these Freshmen proved it with hard work and concentrated efforts.

Mr. Ranstrom held his students' attention, even while his back was turned.

Teachers were willing to give extra help. Mr. Von Heimburg explains science principles to a confused student.

Freshmen were continuously busy with class work, but these few found time to pause in a busy day.

Proud To Be Orioles, Freshmen Were Sure

Freshman officers: Mary Deutsch, Secretary; Martha Campbell, Treasurer; Bonnie Dummer, V. President; Joe Walter, President.

What's this? Earmuffs for noisy libraries. Muriel Brummond took advantage of a new study aid installed in the library.

A new class of Freshmen again roamed the halls of Central. For some of them it was their third year at Central, but for most it was a new experience.

After several weeks they became accustomed to their surroundings. Student life for the Freshmen was far from dull. They had various extra-curricular activities to participate in. They also sponsored several dances during the year, which many attended.

Next year the Freshmen will have to submit to being lower classmen once more.

General Science students, Larry Hornada, Marcia Marek, and Bruce Mueller, can tell you that "general science" meant the study of everything from pine cones to the solar system.

Irishmen were kept busy at their desks, preparing for the coming years at Union.

Freshmen Got a Better Insight Into What

Dennis Nelson checked over some vital statistics before presenting his history project to the class.

The halls of Central were congested after school but Miss Carey, Miss Weinand, and Miss Lewis were there to lend a hand.

The daily procession of hungry freshmen such as these was a familiar sight in Central's cafeteria.

Taking their general science course seriously, freshmen studied the weather and tried to become "weather-wise".

The freshmen were encouraged to begin thinking and reading about their future career plans.

Freshmen Were at the Top at Central

Selling Oriole subscriptions was serious business, but the "rewards" were substantial for all concerned.

It took determined concentration on the part of this freshman to do work in mechanical drawing.

FOCUS Reported the Year's Major Events

Freshman students at Central found time in their unusually busy schedules for a great number of extra-curricular activities and clubs. There was a club for almost everyone--no matter where his interest was centered.

Realizing the importance of clubs and the responsibilities that go along with membership, the freshmen joined Library Club, GAA, Student Council, Latin Club, and Audio Visual.

Focus, the school paper reported the events that occurred during the year. The staff worked diligently to get the paper organized and ready to be typed each month. GAA was a welcomed activity to all of the members. Audio Visual members assisted the teachers with the projectors and tape recorders. Any student having trouble finding the correct book they need can get help from a Library Club member.

Probably without realizing it, these students made marked strides toward becoming responsible high school citizens.

Central Sports Brought Out Many Athletes

The Central School Football Team took time out from one of its important practice sessions to pose for this picture. It is evident that a good year was enjoyed by all.

The pride and satisfaction displayed here by Coach Paine and his team of dribblers assured us that the hard work of these boys produced a prosperous and joyous year.

After a Year of Being "Inbetween" Eighth

The eighth graders were second in rank at Central, but that didn't prevent them from being top in the effort they exerted to make others proud of them. Classes were becoming harder, but that only made them work all the more. Foremost in their minds was the hope of becoming better Freshmen.

8th Grade Officers: Vice President, Pat Robbins; Treasurer, Krista Pusch; Secretary, Heidi Schultz; and President, Lupe Nanez.

In great expectation of the film they were about to see, they all were secretly hoping Mr. Hansen would hurry a little faster.

Mary Berghammer, Karen Flynn, and Marlene Becker demonstrated their domestic techniques.

These Were the Moments We All Remembered

A stitch in time saved Karen Flynn and Lynn Schmitt money and increased their wardrobes as well.

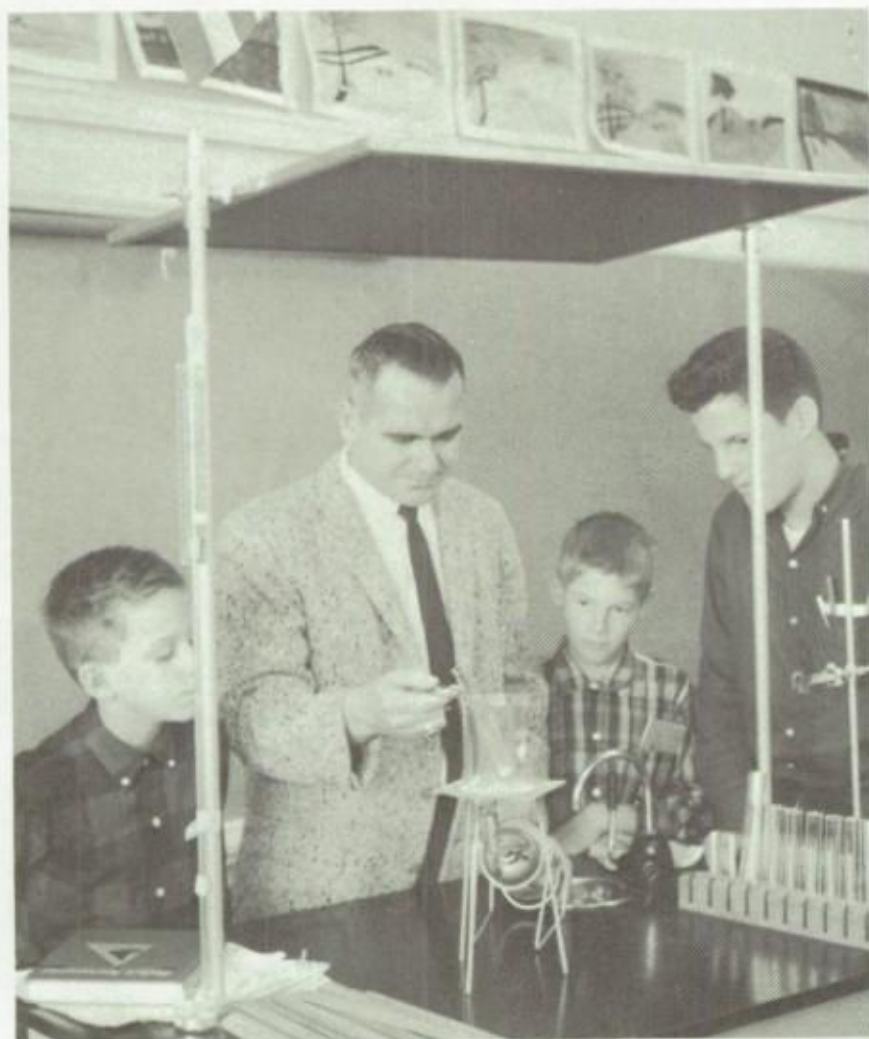

The eighth graders in Mr. Nicolaus' history class labored diligently to file away in their minds, all those important names and dates.

Scott Farwell was unsuccessful in his endeavors to impress Bonnie Redlin and Tommy Gehl with his Atlas routine.

Seventh Graders Foresaw Great New Things.

Mr. Harry caught the attention of Linda Otte, Dan Rateau, David Linder, and Bill Luedke as he demonstrated for the class.

The seventh graders were enthusiastic about their first year at Central. Many new opportunities and experiences awaited them.

They had a chance to participate in clubs and organizations. The biggest adjustment they faced was moving from room to room for each class.

Soon everything was routine to them. Now they have a year of experience behind them and are ready to come back next year with even more enthusiasm.

The fish never got hungry at Central because of the devotion showed by Jim Bublitz, Gail Rosenthal, and Cynthia Simmons.

Central's Band and Chorus Put Some Rhythm

BAND & CHORUS

Each fall Central's band don their red and black uniforms and march down Main Street at the head of the Homecoming parade. They practiced enthusiastically every day, preparing for their concerts and contests.

Freshman Girls' Chorus again found many members with Mixed Chorus in mind for next year, they practiced every day and were able to give several successful concerts. They have added a cheerful note to Centrals' programs and concerts.

Sectional was one of the necessary elements that made new band members like old members.

Before anyone was ready to perform in public the fundamentals of music had to be learned.

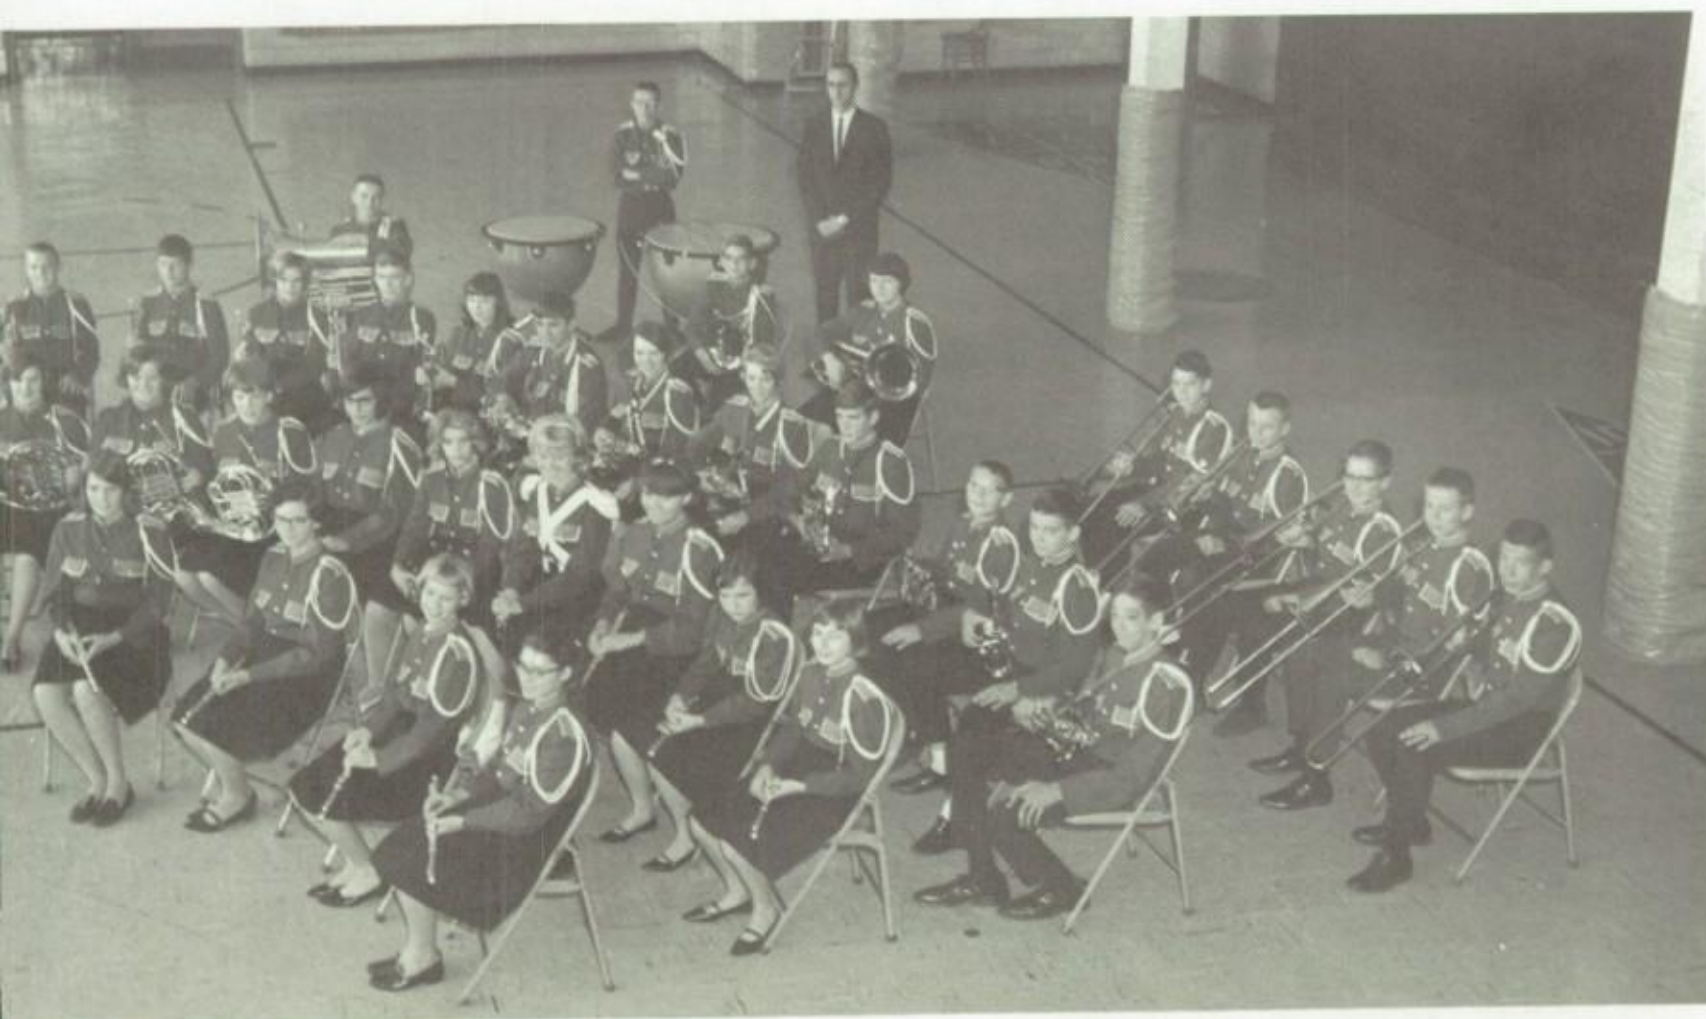

Central Band put in a lot of teamwork to produce the music they did. Their goal-Success.

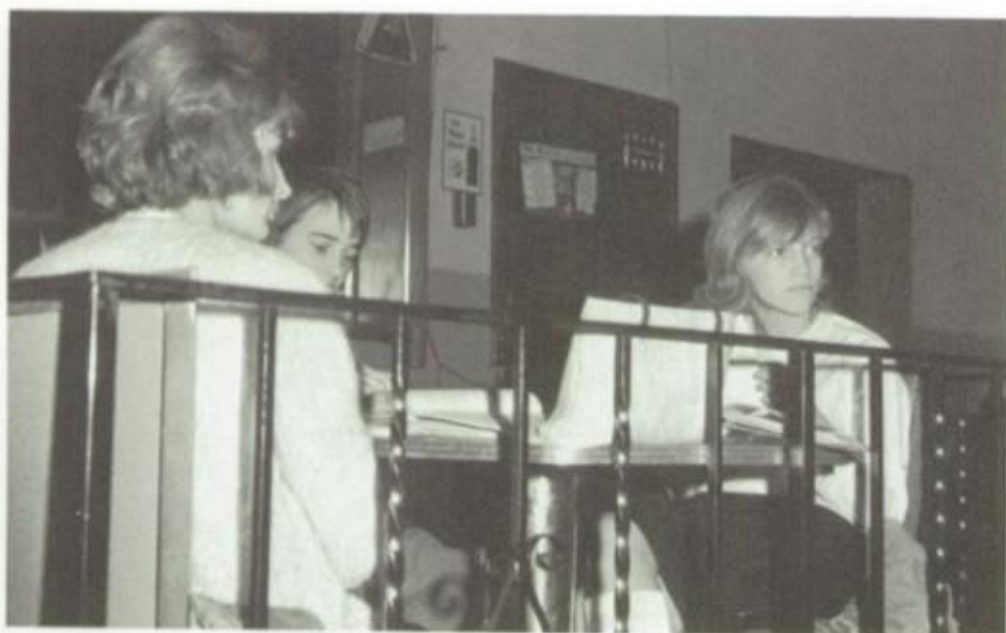

nto the Monotonous Routine of Junior High

These happy smiling girls had a reason to be proud of their accomplishments. Under the direction of Miss Knoll the Freshman

Girls' Chorus filled their year with hard work, fun and excitement.

Bowling was fun but the homework still had to be finished, and these girls looked longingly towards the lanes.

Some fancy footwork and wishful thinking backed this volley, but that just wasn't enough.

This was typical night of GAA except for one of the boys who just happened to walk in.

With a little bit of luck and a lot of experience the ball might get down to the pins.

Girls Needed Plenty of Vim and Vigor

After many days of diligent practice, Miss Weinand decided to assemble them into teams.

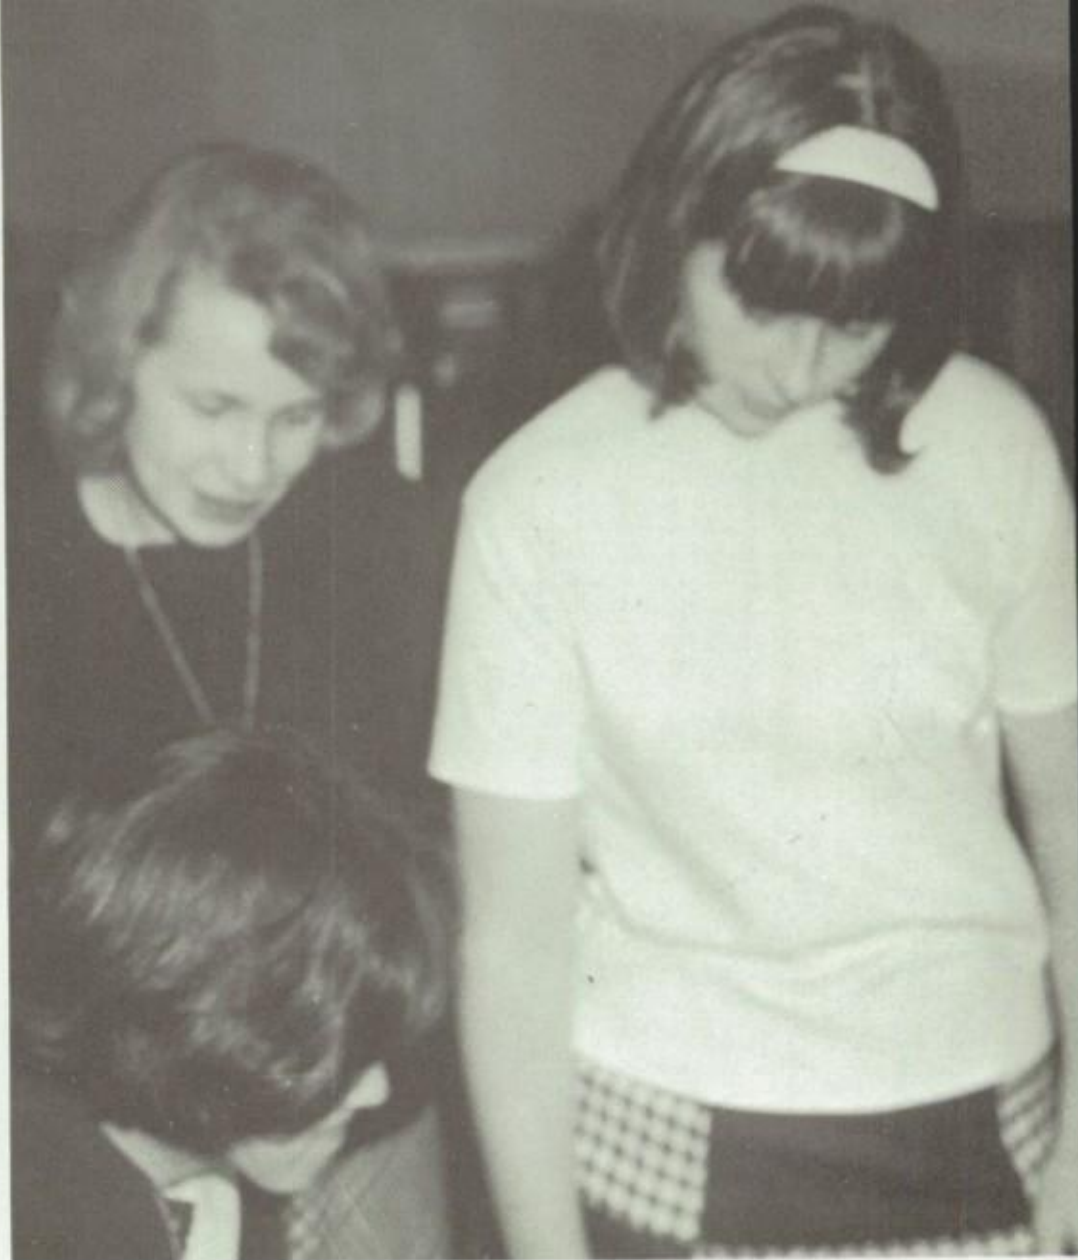

The score was tied and the winning point was in the air. Everyone watched with suspense and anxiety.

Strikes were few and far between, but the Central GAA girls did their best to master the art of bowling.

After a hard session of bowling these girls took time out to relax and watch the other participants.

Looks of happiness from the opposing team were replaced by looks of concern after glancing at the score sheet.

Learning the new tactics of volleyball wasn't always easy. The hardest part was to get the ball over the net.

to Participate in Sports

"Give me your hands all over one by one . . ." was overheard as this team planned their conspiracy against defeat.
